Bizarre International Intrigue

Faint Cries Foil Kidnap

ROME (UPI) — Egyptian embassy officials attempted Tuesday to smuggle a bound, gagged and drugged Moroccan out of Italy in an air freight crate marked "diplomatic baggage" but were foiled when an airport guard heard muffled cries.

Police uncovered what appeared to be a bizarre kidnap attempt when the guard heard the faint cries coming from the leather-bound crate as it was about to be loaded onto a United Arab Republic jet liner bound for Cairo.

The crate was addressed to the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Police confirmed they were investigating the incident but they declined to release any details. They identified the man in the crate as Joseph Dahhan, 30, from Morocco, and said he arrived here two days ago from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Airport sources said two U.A.R. embassy officials brought the crate to the airport. The sources said Dahhan told police he had been kidnapped

Monday night near Via Veneto, Rome's gay nightlife strip. He said he was hit on the head, forced into the car and later given injections that put him to sleep.

They said when the suspicious airport guard stopped the loading of the crate, a third Egyptian embassy official appeared and there was a struggle.

Then two of the Egyptians loaded the crate onto a truck that was parked near the plane. One of the officials got in the truck and roared away toward Rome.

The airport guard called for help and policeman Pietro

Jabboni leaped into a car and gave chase. He caught the truck and stopped it two miles from the airport. The sources said there was another struggle before a passing postal truck driver stopped to give Jabboni aid.

Police opened the crate and found Dahhan, strapped to a seat and gagged. He was semi-conscious, his head held firm by a metal band. His feet were tied. His shoes and jacket had been removed.

The airport sources said one of the U.A.R. embassy officials had said the crate which held Dahhan was carrying musical instruments.

Bus Decision: Is Public Out?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Public Utilities Commission may have to ignore the public when it makes a decision on whether B.C. Hydro may increase its bus fares, chairman Henry Angus said Tuesday.

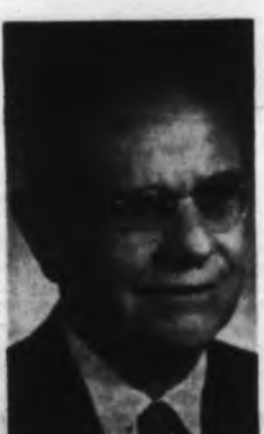

Restrictions in jurisdiction placed on the PUC by the cabinet may mean the PUC cannot give any weight to questions of public interest and public equity in connection with the increases, he said.

Dr. Angus made the statements at a PUC hearing into an application by Hydro to increase its bus fares in Vancouver from 15 cents to 25 cents cash, and in Victoria from 13 cents to 25 cents cash.

He asked lawyers for the power authority and lawyers for the 10 Vancouver and Victoria municipalities who are opposing the increase to advise the PUC on its jurisdiction.

"I would like some advice on the freedom of action of the PUC," he said.

He said such matters as public convenience, the social consequences of a fare increase and the matter of children's fares apparently "are now irrelevant for us and must be addressed to Hydro."

'Deliberate Disregard'

Air Body Plans Crackdown On Coast Lines

OTTAWA (CP)—The air transport board warned Tuesday it plans a crackdown on "alarming deliberate disregard" of its regulations by a high proportion of air carriers along the B.C. coast.

The board said the B.C. coast, including Vancouver Island, is oversupplied with air services. It indicated it will reject many of 27 applications pending for new or increased coastal air service, giving preference to firms which plan regular service between specific points.

On ATB spokesman said an investigation showed many class 4 charter firms were rate-cutting and making special "loss-leader" deals to obtain a larger share of business.

Most of this was occurring in areas where too many charter services were operating for the business available.

In a 1,600-word policy statement on B.C. coastal air service, the board said it plans to crack down on such illegal activity by stepping up its inspection and enforcement staff.

OVER-SUPPLY

Generally, it found that: ● There is an over-supply of equipment and services to handle the existing and potential air traffic in certain sections of the B.C. coast.

● Most of the communities on the West Coast are well served by air services.

● Because of illegal rate-cutting, certain carriers have gained a disproportionate share of available traffic and have over-equipped themselves in relation to the service they are licensed to provide.

● Air requirements would best be met by the development of efficient Class 2 regular specific-point services where the traffic warrants it.

The board, which held public hearings in B.C. last spring during its study of the situation, rejected the contention of some carriers that the West Coast is a special area where air service requires a different type of development.

10 Killed

U.S. Plane Crashes In Atlantic

ARGENTINA, Nfld. (UPI)—An American navy patrol plane plunged into the Atlantic and exploded in flames near this U.S. naval air station Tuesday, killing all 10 men aboard.

The U.S. Navy said an extensive surface and aerial search of the crash site showed there were no survivors. The four-engined P-3A Orion aircraft went down in Placentia Bay while attempting a landing.

ONLY REMNANTS

All that searchers could find floating at the storm-swept site some four miles west of here were bits of garment and debris thought to be remnants of the big plane and its crew.

The turbo-prop aircraft fell out of the darkened sky and smashed into the Atlantic with a flashing explosion vivid to witnesses four miles away.

The navy said the plane disappeared from radar screens during the final phase of an instrument landing known as Ground Control Approach. The radar landings are normal procedure here at night and in bad weather.

The patrol plane was returning from a six-hour training mission that had been flown in the Argentina area. The navy said it was not carrying a load of weapons normally used to execute its anti-submarine warfare assignment.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

The plane and its crew were attached to a small detachment of anti-submarine Orions that belong to the navy's VP-45 squadron which has its headquarters at Jacksonville, Florida.

There are about six Orions based here.

There was no speculation about what had caused the Orion to crash. The plane's pilots would be getting orders from the ground control centre during the landing procedure, the navy said.

Congo Rebels Held Responsible

U.S. Pleads for Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government appealed directly to Congo insurgents Tuesday night for the safety of Dr. Paul Carlsson and other Americans in rebel hands. The U.S. appeal said the U.S. is ready to co-operate in proposed international arrangements "to protect and evacuate innocent civilians."

The U.S. government, it said, holds the rebel leadership "directly and personally responsible" for the welfare of Carlsson, a missionary under rebel death sentence, and for all the 60 U.S. citizens in the insurgents' area.

State department press officer, Marshall Wright, said the U.S. appeal was issued by the U.S. ambassador at Leopoldville, G. McMurtrie Godley.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP)—Congo rebels indicated Tuesday that U.S. missionary Dr. Paul Carlsson, who had been sentenced to die at noon Monday as an alleged spy, was still alive and negotiations were under way over his fate.

Efforts to save Carlsson—if he is alive—were made by Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya at the request of the U.S. State Department, which urged the rebels to spare Carlsson on humanitarian grounds.

A broadcast from the rebel capital at Stanleyville—heard in Kenya—said that a mass demonstration took place during the day outside the home of rebel president Christophe Gbenye, with the crowd shouting for Carlsson's immediate execution.

This was the first word suggesting that Carlsson was still alive Tuesday since the rebels said they planned to execute him Monday and then fell silent on his fate.

Tuesday's broadcast said that Gbenye told the demonstrators that everyone wanted peace and that this was a continuation of the policy of Patrice Lumumba, leftist former premier of the Congo killed in the early days of independence from Belgium.

MEETS CONSUL The broadcast said that Gbenye met Monday with the U.S. consul—presumably Michael Hoyt—and discussed the question of prisoners of war.

The Stanleyville account indicated that negotiations between the consul and Gbenye continued. Some of the demonstrators massed outside the president's home carried placards denouncing negotiations over prisoners, the broadcast said.

U.S. consul Hoyt and a staff of four were last reported safe behind the rebel lines in Stanleyville.

Kenyatta acted quickly after receiving a message earlier in the day from U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, who asked him to intervene with the rebel regime.

Dr. O. G. Gazenko, a balding physiologist, said spacemen Andrian Nikolayev, Pavel Popovich and Vladimir Komarov were the only ones to escape "unpleasant sensations."

At the same time, fellow-Russian Dr. V. V. Antipov, a radiologist, said Soviet research had shown "certain space flight factors contribute a definitely harmful effect" to living tissue.

Antipov did not detail the hazardous "factors" but he indicated they included radiation.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—A top Russian scientist disclosed Tuesday that six Soviet cosmonauts suffered "discomforts" ranging from upset stomachs to illusions on flights into space.

Dr. O. G. Gazenko, a balding physiologist, said spacemen Andrian Nikolayev, Pavel Popovich and Vladimir Komarov were the only ones to escape "unpleasant sensations."

33 Days of Skirmishing, Six Weeks in Committee

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament renews the "flag war" Thursday. After 33 days of debate in the opening skirmish in the House, six weeks of continuing struggle in the flag committee, the Commons now digs in to fight it to the finish.

Announcement of the battle plan came Tuesday at the closing of the day's business from government house leader McIlraith after, earlier in the evening, he had informed Conservative House leader Gordon Churchill of it.

The final do-or-die fight will be on the government's motion to adopt the recommendation of the flag committee that the single red maple leaf on the red and white field be accepted as the long-sought "distinctive Canadian flag."

Mr. McIlraith was optimistic that the battle would be over and won in not more than a couple of weeks, providing Canada with a new flag for Christmas.

He recalled that in the Commons the other day, Conservative leader Diefenbaker had said there was no disposition to delay matters, and that not more than "30 or so" members of the official opposition would be speaking.

Mr. Diefenbaker still believed a question of such national importance should be decided by plebiscite at the next federal election, but as the "House of Commons man" he calls himself, was prepared to leave it to Parliament.

There have been reports that a number of Conservatives want nothing further of what several of them have termed "a protracted flag debate."

And this, together with the number of absentees due to ill-

Gromyko May Be Promoted

Purge of Nikita's Allies Indicated by New Regime

MOSCOW (UPI) — The new Kremlin leaders indicated today that a purge of supporters of ousted Premier Khrushchev was underway in high Soviet circles. They warned of more changes to come in the government hierarchy.

The central committee of the Soviet Communist party fired the former premier's one-time heir-apparent, dismissed his farm expert and demoted his son-in-law Monday in the first major shakeup since Khrushchev was ousted on Oct. 14.

Today Pravda, the party newspaper, said the committee actions had been based on "our party's unwavering loyalty to the tested Leninist principles of party and state management."

Without mentioning Khrushchev by name, the paper accused the former premier and his intimates of "dabbling, arbitrary and hasty decisions; sensationalism and braggadocio; incompetent interference into (economic) realities and addition to issuing orders and instructions . . ."

Reliable sources said that one of the changes mapped out by the central committee in its meetings this week might be the promotion of Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to deputy premier.

It was considered likely that Khrushchev would lose his seat in the Supreme Soviet.

The party decrees were expected to be made public in a session of the Supreme Soviet scheduled to open Dec. 9.

North Shore Will Get Elevator

Headmaster Denies As Palace 'Regrets'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Howard Mann, chairman of the National Harbors Board, said here Tuesday a $15,000,000 grain elevator will definitely be built on the North Vancouver side of Vancouver harbor.

He said the north side of the harbor was chosen because of heavy rail traffic currently operating on the opposite side — the Vancouver side.

Mr. Mann said the companies were advised six years ago to be prepared to vacate, but they had done nothing about relocating.

Charles' Essays?

Headmaster Denies As Palace 'Regrets'

LONDON (Reuters) — A Buckingham Palace spokesman Tuesday night said it is "highly regrettable" if essays written by Prince Charles had been published in the German magazine Der Stern.

"If these reports of publication in a foreign magazine are true," said the statement, "it is highly regrettable that the private essays of a schoolboy should have been published at all in this way."

The magazine said it bought the texts from Terence Smith, 30, a director of Mercury Press Agency of St. Helen's, Lancashire, after the originals had been taken from Smith by Scotland Yard detectives.

ABERDEEN (UPI) — Robert Chew, headmaster of the Gordonstoun School Tuesday night denied that his most famous pupil, Prince Charles, had sold his essays.

Two 'Widows' Claim Sweepstake Prize

EDMONTON (CP) — Two women have filed claims for $60,000 won as a sweepstake prize on last month's Cambridgehire race in England.

The ticket was purchased by Robert Rombough, who died Sept. 24 at Tomahawk, Alta., 14 days before the race was run.

Doris Rombough, a ranch cook at Tomahawk, claimed the winnings as Mr. Rombough's widow. But Mary Sophie Rombough of North Surrey, B.C., this week filed a caveat with the Alberta Supreme Court, asking payment on the ticket be stayed until her claim to be the legitimate widow of Mr. Rombough is heard.

The B.C. woman said she married Mr. Rombough Dec. 23, 1916, at Loughheed, Alta., and the couple moved to Vancouver in 1935. They had three children, two daughters and a son.

She said she last saw Mr. Rombough in 1944 when he left to work on the Alberta harvest.

Krebiozin Champion Indicted

CHICAGO (AP) — Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, internationally known physiologist who championed krebiozin as a cancer-fighting agent, was indicted with several other persons and institutions Tuesday on charges of mail fraud, conspiracy, mislabeling and making false statements about the drug.

A federal grand jury handed down a 49-count indictment against Ivy and other promoters of the substance the government contends is worthless as a cancer-arresting drug.

Ivy, 71, a research professor of biochemistry at Roosevelt University and a former vice-president of the University of Illinois, was named in 44 counts that carry a maximum penalty, upon conviction, of 150 years imprisonment and $385,000 fine.

OTTAWA (CP) — The drug Krebiozin is not legally available in Canada but could be in the country illegally, the federal food and drug directorate's medical chief said Tuesday.

Three Killed By Grenade Near Tavern

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Three people were killed and a fourth injured Tuesday when a grenade exploded outside a locked tavern door.

The grenade went off moments after John Christie, Jr., 37, was spotted with the grenade in one hand and the grenade's safety pin in the other. Christie was ordered out of the bar and the bar's door was locked. As two policemen arrived the grenade went off.

Christie's legs were blown off by the explosion, killing him. Patrolman John J. Clowar, 29-year-old father of three, was hit by the full blast of the grenade and fell to the sidewalk, dying.

A bystander, Howard E. Layman, 23, was killed as he stood in the doorway waiting to pick up a friend in the tavern.

THE GREATEST NAME IN CIGARETTES

An Auspicious Visit

VICTORIA at least has done itself and its Quebec mayoralty visitors proud in the reception accorded its French-Canadian compatriots over the weekend. Nothing occurred to mar in the slightest the generous welcome this community was glad to extend.

Nothing but good either can result from this unusual occasion, which saw Quebec municipal authorities touch the grass roots of English-speaking opinion in this area. The visitors have departed loud in their praise of the hospitality and warmth with which they were everywhere treated, and the opening of the doors of many private homes to the Quebec mayors and their wives should go a long way to remove any misconceptions as to the sentiments held in their respect.

Mayor Wilson is to be commended on the invitation he extended en bloc to the Quebec municipal officials and on the manner in which the program he supervised for their amenity was so ably carried out.

Victorians have been pleased to have had the opportunity of demonstrating their goodwill to their fellow Canadians of French extraction. It is not always easy to appreciate all that Quebec seems to demand in its claims for greater recognition of what it regards as its special interests, and as a province it has enjoyed the same autonomy as all other provinces in its own domestic development, but one thing which would be reassuring to them while here is that Quebec is equally an integral part of Confederation, and English-speaking Canada concedes that in its entirety.

The desire made manifest in Victoria during this auspicious visit is that this country should go forward together towards ever greater comradeship, united in a spirit of amity that bespeaks equal opportunity for all and a strengthening of the bonds of the two main streams of culture and heritage that are basic to the welfare of the nation.

Crisis at the UN

ACCORDING to press reports from Ottawa, Canadian diplomatic circles have expressed the fear that the action of the United States in refusing to make its annual technical aid pledge to the United Nations may precipitate a major crisis in the world organization.

Unhappily they may be right in their assessment of the present situation.

Undoubtedly the United States government is well aware of what the results of its move might be and indications are that it is prepared to take its chances by sticking to its decision of withholding its pledge until Russia and France pay their share of the United Nations peace-keeping operations.

Russia, for its part, appears equally adamant in its view that certain UN peace-keeping assessments were invalid because they were not approved by the Security Council.

Both the Soviet Union and the Republic of France maintain that the Security Council was bypassed when the General Assembly voted to act in The Congo civil war despite the fact that the Security Council's primary responsibility is to maintain international peace and security on behalf of the whole membership.

They claim that because of this, the UN decision to despatch a contingent to The Congo directly contravened the Charter and that subsequently they are within their rights to refuse to pay any share of the cost of the operation.

Under the strict letter of the United Nations Charter they are perhaps legally right. But under the broader and humanitarian principles and purposes of the world organization they are morally wrong.

It remains to be seen whether this latest move by the United States will have any effect on the Soviet Union's hitherto stubborn stand. If it does, then Washington's chancy gambit will have been worth the play. But if it does not, Russia will have exposed itself as a nation completely unconcerned with either the maintenance of international peace or the welfare of underdeveloped countries.

Further, if no compromise on the matter can be reached between these two great powers, the effectiveness of the whole world organization could well be so impaired in future that it will only be a matter of time before it is reduced to the same lowly status as its ill-starred precursor, the League of Nations.

Fair Representation

WITH THE APPROVAL by the House of Commons of the government's redistribution bill, Canada has taken a memorable stride in democratic betterment, and one that can scarcely allow any turning back in the future.

The legislation may not yield representation by population in the strictest terms, but it reaches toward this ideal as far, probably, as is fair and practical in the present stage of the nation's development.

It will remove the most glaring discrepancies between urban and rural voting power, such as the often cited difference between the Toronto constituency of York-Scarborough with 163,000 eligible voters and Iles de la Madeleine in Quebec with 5,500. It will still allow the electoral map to be so drawn that, with a variation of 25 per cent on either side of the average population of ridings, a city member of Parliament likely in some instances will represent 70 per cent more constituents than his country counterpart. But manifestly it would be inequitable to make the constituencies in the sparsely settled regions of Canada so large that their members could not properly serve them.

The other important advance in the redistribution measure is that it takes away from whichever party may be in power the ability to change boundaries to its own political advantage, according to voting patterns, through a government-dominated parliamentary committee. It should be difficult to impute partisan purpose to commissions made up of two members named by the Speaker, one appointed by the chief justice in each province and, as fourth member in each case, the federal representation commissioner.

The voters of Canada thus seem assured in dual measure of having their interests more accurately reflected in Ottawa. In British Columbia, this can only make it all the more a sore point among them that provincial redistribution—let alone similar reform—is long, long overdue.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax."

By TOM TAYLOR

A NEWS item from London as reported in the Colonist says that Sir Winston Churchill has agreed to have his speeches issued on a long-playing record.

This is an instance of the benefits modern technology is able to confer on posterity. The world yet to come can taste something of the substance of a great man.

For the spoken word can be of immense persuasive evidence, lighting a man and his achievements above and beyond his written legacies.

The record-rating lists probably won't see a Churchillian disc in the top ten of the week, as it were, but his words will echo long after the ephemeral products of this craft have disappeared into the limbo many of them deserve.

Not all his speeches can be compressed into an LP record; this would require not an album but a library. Nor will they all be available in this form. The "gramophone" art was in its infancy when in his younger days his eloquence made itself heard and felt.

But presumably those of his finest hour, the speeches that were not words but acts of statesmanship, those that made a listener rise from the wartime radio feeling an inch taller, will be the centrepieces of the LP.

Included are to be some of his Commons speeches made in secret sessions and so heard only by Westminster MPs. You can read these in book form, but now time will be turned back—that is what the electronic age can do—and his words can be savoured as they were voiced.

Historians of the future will thus have something besides the cold print of document on which to base their conclusions, so often at odds with what contemporaneous judgment has to say. It is a moot point as to which has the verity—the verdict of hindsight or that which is part of the living scene.

Churchill can stand the test, either way, although doubtless when he passes on the belittlement will begin—the customary attempts at diminution that seem to follow all persons of eminent quality. The greatest Englishman of his time, as he is rightly referred to, will not escape the barbs of smaller minds.

I have most, if not all, of his wartime speeches and memoirs in book form, but these will be doubly enriched by laying alongside them the oratorical origin that was their fount.

If oratory be judged by the sheer spilling of eloquence, the liquid flow of words in spate, then Churchill to this writer is not of that vein; but his mastery of utterance, his mastery of material and felicity of phrase-making, the evocative nature of his speeches, are what rank him highly among those who use words to move and guide a people.

And if ever a leader did that it was the wartime British prime minister. None before him, either, made the history which his words so brightly illuminated.

Speeches, for the most part, are dull in print, but Churchill spoke as he wrote and wrote as he spoke to present the complete man that was himself. This long-playing record will be unique in its embracing character.

It is appropriate that this LP should be issued to coincide with his approaching 90th birthday, when once more the focus will turn to a figure of renown so well remembered in the hearts of countless of his contemporaries.

Highest Echelon All 'Old Guard'

The Succession to Power in China

By ED MEAGHER from Hong Kong

MAO TSE-TUNG will be succeeded when he dies by one of his contemporary disciples, who is bound to be an old man.

All Mao's immediate heirs are elderly.

But what about the younger generation from whom China must draw its leaders within a few more years, perhaps within a decade?

Who are these comparatively young men who will take charge? Which of them will wear the big hat?

No position of real political power in the party or government is now filled by what might be described as a younger, "second-generation" Communist. Under the circumstances there is no way to single out possible "comers."

Most observers believe that the party chairman Mao, now 71, will be succeeded by Liu Shao-chi, but Liu is only five years younger than Mao and may not outlive him.

Should it be Liu, No. 2 man in the party and heir apparent, a transitional struggle for supreme power probably will develop, observers here believe.

As of now there are about a dozen ranking leaders who clearly would be in contention as serious candidates.

All are Mao's men, charter members of the old guard, his colleagues in long years of revolution.

Premier Chou En-lai is presently No. 3 in the party. At 66 he is the same age as Liu and, like him, carries the title of vice-chairman of the party. He must be given consideration for the top spot in any reshuffling.

But a much more likely candidate in most analysts' books is Teng Hsiao-ping, 64, secretary general of the party.

With the party reins firmly in hand, Teng might use the post as a springboard to the chairmanship, or at the very least, cast himself in the role of kingmaker if a younger man is to be selected.

His influence may be measured by the fact that he is the direct superior of six men who cannot be counted out as potential rulers of China, either in direct succession to Mao or following a transition period.

Each heads up one of the six regional party bureaus.

These men, under Teng's overall responsibility, administer and enforce party directives, and the party runs Communist China.

In age they range from Ko Chung-shih, first secretary of the party's East China Bureau and mayor of Shanghai, who is 64, down to Tao Chu, head of the party's central south bureau, who is 55.

Ko's age is against him, and he has only recently reappeared in public after what was believed a serious illness. Tao, however, with age to his advantage, probably has a stronger potential.

The other regional bureau chiefs are Li Ching-chuan in the southwest, Liu Lan-tao in the northwest, Li Hsueh-feng, North China, and Sung Jen-chung, northeast China.

The two Lis are particularly worth marking, experts say. Li Ching-chuan was jumped over hundreds of higher officials when named to the party's central politburo in 1958. He took part in the initial stages of the prewar long march, trained in Yenan and is generally described as being close to Mao.

Li Hsueh-feng did not emerge as a party leader until 1956 when he was elected to the party's central committee. He has been head of the North China bureau only a little more than a year.

If Marshal Lin Biao were in good health he would be a good bet to take over from Mao. But Lin, 56, minister of defence and also a vice-chairman of the party, is known to be ailing.

Under him, however, are two men to be reckoned with in any discussion of future Chinese leadership. They are Lo Jui-feng, 57, vice-minister of defence and chief of staff of the armed forces, and Hsiao Hua, 49, head of the political department of the armed forces.

Lo is perhaps the best known to the outside world. He has been voluminously publicized as the feared, sinister man responsible for execution of all bloody purges since 1949.

The repulsive image of Lo created by the world's press may be somewhat unfair. His face is scarred and he is unable to move some facial muscles because of battle injuries. His face is set in a perpetual grimace which seemed to fit the grim post he held for ten years—minister of national security.

Hsiao Hua's comparative youth also forces attention. He is the only Chinese leader under 50 who exercises significant authority.

Hsiao has toured eastern Europe and accompanied a military mission to North Vietnam in 1960. As the head of the political department of the armed forces he is able to exert substantial leverage over its leadership. He also is director of the general cadres department. This means that he is in charge of armed forces personnel, records, assignments, transfers and promotions—clearly a man not to be taken lightly in China for many years to come.

There are other Chinese leaders who would rate consideration as possible successors, such as Peng Chen, mayor of Peking, and Foreign Affairs Minister Chen Yi. But they are well over 60.

There are dozens of second generation men now in their 30s and 40s who occupy posts of great responsibility—ministers of such important government areas as communications and metallurgy—but they have not yet been entrusted with political authority.

The question of succession in China is not limited to Mao's position. As of now it extends down to all positions of real power. It seems probable to analysts here that death alone will clear the way for major changes in top leadership.

To be considered for publication in whole or in part, letters must be on subjects of general interest and signed with true names. They must be accompanied by return address. Preference will be given to those that are brief.

I WAS INTERESTED to read your article about the new Forest Research Laboratory which has been constructed near Burnside, and to see the elaborate sign bearing the Canadian coat-of-arms on a rock-work background.

I also note that since the completion of this sign, government officials have apparently decided the message should be repeated in French on the left side of the driveway, at a cost of $2,500. WHY?

Was it not Prime Minister Bennett who at a recent meeting of the provincial prime ministers in Ottawa said, "Why should we teach French in B.C.?" We have more Chinese than Frenchmen, we should teach Chinese, or words to that effect.

Surely if this is the case we should spend another $2,500 of the taxpayers' money on a Chinese sign, and whilst we are at it why not go all out and make it an even $10,000 and have a fourth sign in Indian.

PERPLEXED

Pension and Costs

With reference to your article, "Word on Pension," I note that the old-age pension is to be attached to the cost of living. I would like to suggest that medical insurance of $60 a year ought not to be paid by pensioners below the income tax level as it reduces the pension from $75 to $70 a month.

NINA M. HOLMES.

Reading Service

From time to time one of my friends in hospital finds it impossible, or very difficult to read.

Much splendid work has been done, and is being done, by women's auxiliaries to hospitals. Do they include in their work reading to patients?

By hospitals I include, very especially, private hospitals.

Indeed very special commendation is due to the Brownies of the 12th Pack who were present, 15 small girls of eight to 10 years, who stood through the cold and who, for some reason known only to the "powers that be," had been assigned a position right behind everybody else and were quite unable to see anything of the proceedings except the lowering and raising of the flag. Their behavior was all the more praiseworthy because they knew their friends were having a good time—skating in the Arena, just a short distance away.

May we hope that, next year, a better position will be assigned to them and that in view of the solemn significance of the occasion, skating will be postponed until the service is over.

GRATEFUL PATIENT

Civil Servants

I cannot accept the prime minister's view that it would discriminate against other groups, not civil servants, to give a raise in pension to retired civil servants.

We are not asking for taxpayers' money, we paid our 30s into a fund that amounts to hundreds of millions of dollars, and when a dollar was worth 100 cents.

Civil servants are retiring on pensions today that amount to more than our monthly salaries were 25 years ago.

No Mr. Pearson, we shall not forget.

FOR JUSTICE

Beyond Reproach

Having listened to many complaints about the behavior of children at the various local Remembrance Day services, I feel I must speak up in defence of the children who were part of the Esquimalt service whose behavior was beyond reproach.

The Flag

I am pleased to see that the too-long-continued, futile and wasteful flag discussion in Parliament seems at last to be drawing to a close. I have long thought that it is neither sportsmanlike nor gracious to continue to wave over the heads of the people of Quebec a flag that reminds them of the humiliation of their ancestors, that seems to say to them, "We are the conquerors and you are the conquered." Let us reverse the position and put ourselves in their place. Should we like it? I think not. Nor should we continue to do to others what we should not like them to do to us.

Just how representative of Canada can be any flag spurned by one-fourth of the population and that is probably indifferent or even distasteful to many others of non-British origin? Better to have one flag equal to all and that can in time be respected by all.

Colorful Cowboys

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

A MID THE continuing rumor and counter-rumor of discontent, if not revolt, rumbling out of the Conservative Commons caucus these politically unsettled days, you keep hearing about what Parliament Hill has come to call "Die's Cowboys."

Come certain elements of the Conservative Party against him, as they did his short-lived minority cabinet, "Die's Cowboys" stand firm as frontier marshals.

Then come more than half the Canadian electorate against John Diefenbaker, as it did in the 1963 election, and the "Cowboy Country" holds solid as a rock.

Who, then, are the "Cowboys"?

Essentially, except for a couple of celebrated exceptions, they're the Prairie MPs, a Conservative tribe apart.

But the ones they call "The Cowboys" are the Horner Boys, Brothers Jack and Hugh and Cousin Albert.

Patriarch of the tribe is the senator—Ralph S. Horner, famed Prairie horse-breeder—sure of Brothers Jack and Hugh, uncle of Cousin Al, and at 80, still a hard-fighting man.

Range boss of the Horner outfit, though, is John Henry, 55, a plain-spoken, almost cartoon-type westerner from Alberta's short grass country, who calls the Liberals "gutless wonders" to their faces across the Commons corral, and doesn't bother to exclude Prime Minister Pearson and members of his cabinet.

Jack, tromping uncaring through the niceties of the Eastern Canadian way of doing and saying things—which he rather contemptuously regards as a little on the softly effete side—makes it plain he likes to call fertilizer by its range country name, and says he knows where it's being spread across Parliament Hill.

John Henry Horner it was who saved Diefenbaker's bacon back in the days of the cabinet conspiracy when the rebels were fixing to turn him out to pasture.

Jack headed the Horner Boys, Brother Hugh, Cousin Al and Old Dad Ralph, down the corridors of the Centre Block for the Conservative caucus, muttering that they were "going to get ourselves a couple of them Bay Street broker boys."

The Horner Boys, backed up by the other "cowboys" from the rangelands, looked the rebels in the eye, and gave them what John Henry later described as a "talking to" the Big Sky Country way.

Dief won that shoot-out, and those of the rebels who didn't jack up their gear and as John Henry says "git," quietly got back into line.

And there, in line, they have stayed—until now, when once again there are ripples of rebellion—and so John Henry, Brother Hugh, Cousin Al and Pop Horner again may have to saddle up to cut the rebels off at the pass.

Brother Hugh will be riding with John Henry and together they make such a pair as to strike the panic of silence into the breast of almost any occupant of the Liberal cabinet benches.

The Horner Boys' idea of sport is to take on members of the cabinet two or three at a time, including the prime minister, and they usually come out of it with the last word.

For what you can say when you know that the Horner Boys will just as soon sling you out, range-style, as not.

They haven't yet come into the Commons with their lariats and lassosed any of Mike Pearson's men—but they have taken their ropes into Conservative conferences and caucuses, and what's more, used them, on George Hees, for one.

Brother Hugh, riding and roping for Diefenbaker, verbally shot up the parliamentary press corps not so long ago with the charge that they were doing his "chief" in the eye and knifing him in the back with their typewriters and microphones simply because he wasn't keeping them mellow on "booze" any more.

And "booze" was Brother Hugh's word for it.

True it was that Diefenbaker was serving only tea, coffee and milk at receptions, and it just might have been out of a sense of guilt or resentment over Brother Hugh's "booze" charge that some members of the press corps retaliated—and in print, too—by calling the Horner Boys the "Scraggy Brothers."

Those are the "Cowboys," and say what you will about them, they DO make for color in the Commons.

In About 20 Years

Pension Costs Up by Third?

OTTAWA (CP)—Although it may be necessary in 20 years or so to increase the rate of contributions to the Canada Pension Plan, the rise will not be more than about a third, Finance Minister Gordon told the Commons Tuesday.

He said the starting contribution rate of 3.6 per cent, divided equally between employer and employee, would remain less than 2.5 per cent each. This would be "a reasonable rate," he said.

ANOTHER GENERATION

It would be for another generation to decide what exact changes were necessary, but "the one thing we can say is that, even at that point, the change in contribution rate that may be made 20 or 25 or 30 years from now is not likely to be a big increase."

Even if Conservative projections of the pension plan's cost "should turn out to be right, the rate might go up by one-quarter or one-third. That is to say, it would still be under 2½ per cent each for the employer and employee. That would remain a modest price to pay for the benefits in security and social insurance which this plan provides."

EQUAL CONTRIBUTIONS

Starting in 1966, employees and employers will share equally the contribution cost of 3.6 per cent of wages earned between $600 and $5,000 a year. Reduced benefits are to be paid during the 10-year transitional period beginning in 1967. After the transitional period ends, maximum benefits would be $104 a month.

Despised in Prison

Meekers Isolated For Own Safety

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Convicted sex criminals Kenneth and James Meeker, their lives apparently in danger, are living in a prison within a prison.

They are despised by the prisoners from whom they are strictly segregated at the British Columbia federal penitentiary here.

The brothers never move among the main body of prisoners because of murmurings of violence, prison authorities said Tuesday.

CHILD SLAIN

Kenneth Meeker, 30, who faced the gallows three times before the federal cabinet commuted his death sentence, was convicted of the sex-slaying of Alice Mathers, 12, in an abandoned gravel pit near Mission, B.C., June 10, 1963.

In commuting the death sentence and giving Kenneth Meeker life imprisonment, the government announced he would not be released on parole unless the cabinet gave its consent.

James Meeker, 35, was given a 10-year prison sentence for having carnal knowledge with the girl. He was later declared a dangerous sexual offender and given an indefinite prison term that could last for life.

The Meekers were brought together for the first time in a year when Kenneth was moved from a cell near the Oakalla prison gallows and taken here. They were immediately placed, along with nine men said to be police informers, in a special isolation wing.

The wing was created for those whose lives would be in danger if they mingled with the prison population.

Authorities say the Meekers will be kept in the wing, on the roof of a prison building high above the exercise yard, as long as it takes other prisoners to forget the Alice Mathers case.

"And that could be a long, long time," said a spokesman. He said the prisoners are well informed on the Mathers case.

"Prisoners here get as worked up as people outside over sex criminals."

SOCIAL STRUCTURE

The B.C. penitentiary, like all other prisons, has its own social structure. Murderers and bank robbers are at the top. They look down on confidence men. Confidence men in turn look down on the petty criminals, who look down on drug addicts, who look down on sex criminals.

And even the sex criminals have someone to look down upon—other sex criminals who have chosen children as their victims, authorities said.

Help Urged For Schools

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York urged the Vatican ecumenical council Tuesday to issue a declaration that religious schools are entitled to "a due measure of public aid."

Universities can no longer train people for a specific career, they can only give them knowledge to enable them to get more knowledge, city businessmen were told Tuesday.

Dr. M. H. Scargill, assistant to University of Victoria president Dr. Malcolm G. Taylor, told the Administrative Management Society that training as distinct from education is largely a waste of time.

CAN'T KEEP PACE

"There is so much to know, we can't keep pace with the old education system," said Dr. Scargill.

He said engineers can't be trained because "we don't know what to train them in; druggists can't be trained because we don't know what drugs will be used. Students cannot be trained in business because we don't know what future business methods are going to be."

Dr. Scargill said that more universities must be built to accommodate the increasing number of students and to train more university teachers.

NOW LONG?

Canada now imports 40 per cent of her university teachers.

"How long can we expect to get that percentage of teachers from outside?" he asked. "We must increase the facilities here in Canada."

He said that great cost would be involved but explained that much is returned to the community where the university is situated.

Every university appointment means $25,000 a year in accumulated spending in the community; each student spends $500; building costs mean money in the community.

As an alternative to expansion he asked what the cost of not educating people would be.

More people would be on the streets, frustrated because they could not attain their ambitions. It would mean cheaper music, films and books because people would not know how to ask for anything better.

LOSS OF FREEDOM

People would be unemployed; unable to make the best of their abilities, in a highly technical world in which the unskilled is not needed.

"It would mean loss of freedom. Other nations would spread their teachings far and wide. Unless we educate for democracy, what chance have we for survival?" asked Dr. Scargill.

"Only enlightened people can build a democracy. Only the ignorant fall prey to dictators."

DEFENDER

For the University of Victoria he foresaw a future which would include teachings based on the attributes of the area—horticulture, fine arts, government and administration, history.

"When the historians write in the future," he predicted, "the University of Victoria will loom large as a defender of education."

Vancouver Papers Hit By Computer Dispute

VANCOUVER (UPI)—A contract dispute between two Vancouver newspapers Tuesday was in the hands of British Columbia government conciliation officer George Carmichael.

It was the same issue that led to a strike this year against three Toronto newspapers.

Flamenco Guitarist Wins Student Audience

Famed flamenco guitarist Carlos Montoya won a standing ovation from several hundred students at noon Tuesday after a recital in University of Victoria's Gordon Head gymnasium.

Montoya, with one of the most extensive repertoires of any living guitarist, gave his appreciative audience a 30-minute program.

A varied selection of flamenco songs and dances was followed by one number in which the guitar imitated the sound of military trumpet and drums.

He finished his concert with a flamenco version of St. Louis Blues.

New Outlet Puts BBC In the Red

LONDON (UPI)—The British Broadcasting Corp. said Tuesday it operated at a deficit of more than $9,000,000 during the fiscal year 1963-64 — mainly due to the start of a second television channel.

BBC television lost $6,250,000 and BBC radio lost $2,812,152, according to its annual report.

Financially, the year was one of disappointment for the BBC, the report stated. "The BBC will, as a result, be forced into extensive borrowing."

India Breaks China Ties

TOKYO (UPI)—The Chinese said Monday that India was breaking off "friendly contacts," such as scientific and cultural exchanges, with China after having voiced strong opposition to Peking's drive to develop nuclear arms.

A letter from ratepayer Ken V. Cutler, 1740 Cedar Hill Cross Road, complaining about canines, was read at Monday's council meeting.

"Dogs of all varieties—mostly large—travel in packs 'showing off' with the result that no garden in their path is left without attention," Mr. Cutler stated.

Shouted epithets were regarded "only with amused disdain" by the dogs.

"Dog fights are the main event several times daily at Broadmead Park."

Poundkeeper Sinclair had suggested that "I supply him with the names and addresses of the dogs involved, but they have proved unco-operative in supplying such information."

In a written report, poundkeeper Sinclair said the situation is caused by a dog in heat which attracts other dogs.

Several dogs had been impounded, including one from Oak Bay, but patrolling was difficult.

"They get to know the pound truck and run on arrival."

Extradition Negotiated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Brazil have formally exchanged papers ratifying an extradition treaty they signed Jan. 13, 1961, thus completing extradition arrangements between the U.S. and every country in the Western Hemisphere.

Motel Building Slows Down

By HARRY YOUNG Colonist Business Editor

The bloom is off the rose in the motel business, says Cooper and Golin, a Chicago marketing, sales and public relations company.

The construction of new motels has come to a virtual halt, and insurance and pension funds are no longer in the field with mortgage financing.

Many motels are said to be under the break-level occupancy rate of 65 per cent.

Overbuilding has been the cause of the difficulty in which the motel industry finds itself.

Motel- which specialize in conventions and business meetings are doing best, and one of them, the O'Hare Inn at Chicago International airport with 90 per cent occupancy, claims to be hosting 2,000 conventions this year.

PWA REVENUE RISES

An increase of 48 per cent in total revenues in the first nine months of 1964 is reported by Pacific Western Airlines Ltd. over the same period of 1963.

The Vancouver company says that the extra earnings of $2,300,000 from the previous year were due largely to international operations which were inaugurated during the year.

The MacKenzie mainline was responsible for 39 per cent of earnings; Westcoast mainline 14 per cent; Chieftain AirBus six per cent; International charter 19 per cent; large plane contract and charter eight per cent and small plane contract and charter 15 per cent.

Increased activity was related to the Athabasca Tar Sands development, the Peace River power project, Granduc Mining and the Pine Point base metal operation of Consolidated Mining and Smelting.

Western Pacific carried 7,686 passengers across the Atlantic and 1,632 to the Caribbean in addition to 165,375 domestic passengers and 13,258,824 pounds of cargo.

Net cash gain over the same period of 1963 was 34 per cent.

THIRD LARGEST PLANT

Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd. is planning to build Canada's third largest natural gas processing plant. To be built at Edson, Alta., it would have a throughput of 100,000,000 cubic feet a day and would be attached to a sulphur plant.

An application for permission to build has been placed before the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board. Gas from the plant would flow through the Trans Canada Pipe Line to Eastern Canadian and U.S. customers.

ALCAN FOLLOWS LEAD

Aluminum Company of Canada has raised its prices in the Canadian domestic market in line with those announced earlier by Aluminum Corporation of America.

The primary ingot price of aluminum will be 26 cents a pound, up half a cent, while semi-fabricated products will cost one cent a pound more.

Aluminum Ltd., parent company of Alcan, said that its aluminum prices in the U.S. market would rise accordingly.

STEEL IN DEMAND

Canada's steelmakers are unable to keep production in line with demand in 1964, and deliveries are running behind schedule, despite the fact that in the first 10 months of 1964 steel production at 7,447,094 tons is 11.3 per cent above the corresponding period of 1963.

L. T. Craig, an executive of Stelco, said his firm's customers were on informal rationing. He expected the strong demand to continue in 1965.

Maple Leafs Collapse Points Easy for Bucks

By JIM TANG

It had to happen, but it wasn't pretty to see when it did.

Victoria Maple Leafs, who had always found enough hockey in their first nine home games to make all of them about as good as spectator fare as hockey can provide, collapsed completely at Memorial Arena last night.

That they lost, 2-5, to Portland Buckaroos, again on top of the Western Hockey League tables, was almost incidental. The wonder of it all was that it was close enough with three minutes left to hope for a miracle.

About the only pleasant

thought is that the Maple Leafs will have trouble duplicating last night's performance, and that they have a chance to erase the embarrassment of it all in a four-game road trip which starts in San Francisco Friday.

After last night, that last thought seems only a wild hope. The collapse was general and the Leafs were about as inept together as it is possible for a club to get.

They weren't skating, they weren't thinking and there was no sign of the spirit which in previous home games usually brought them back into contention.

Just about everything that could go wrong went wrong last night. Two of the first three Portland goals looked as if they should have been blocked and the fourth was a glaring defensive lapse. On the occasions when it looked as if the Leafs might be about to start something, there was some bad luck but, more often, it was just bad positioning or bad passing which saw the chances wasted.

ESCAPES SLUMP

Only Rolfe Wilcox, the hard-plugging mookie winger, and Claude Labrosse, the steady veteran who has been a help on defence, escaped the general letdown.

Adding to a bad night, game officials got into the spirit of things with officiating about on a par with the Victoria effort. Not that this made any difference, except, perhaps, to give the 2,112 fans something on which to vent their spleen.

OFF BALANCE

Sensing early that this was likely to be an easy two points, the Buckaroos kept the off-balance Leafs off-balance with persistent forechecking. And while they really didn't press the issue after getting a safe lead, it took some good saves by Al Millar to keep the score down. But Al locked the barn door after the horse had gone.

Pesky Arnie Schmutz, as effective as anyone on the ice with his never-ending checking and penalty-killing, got Portland started with a shot from the right face-off spot—a spot that has been giving Millar no end of troubles.

SLIDES FAST

Then McVie, trying to tip Pat Stapleton's slap shot on a power play, just slowed the puck down and it slid past the off-balance Millar for 2-0 starting the second period.

Wilcox set the stage for a possible rally early in the second period with as lucky a goal as he's ever likely to score, deflecting Labrosse's wide shot from about 25 feet to the left of Don Head.

ANDY CELEBRATES

But nothing was to rouse the Leafs this night. They missed the chance to tie when Jim Hay took a penalty, suddenly found himself two goals behind again as Gerry Goyer appeared to catch Millar napping with a quick shot. Andy Heberton then celebrated his 900th consecutive game by whacking in a passout for 4-1.

Leafs did try to try in the third period, got a hard-to-believe offside call on a promising play and a miss on a cross-check by Portland defenceman Doug Messier as well as a penalty to Bill Shultz which seemed to be in retaliation for Shultz driving a puck towards linesman John Smith and connecting.

DISPERATE MOVE

Wilcox made another deflection for his second goal at 17:04 but Bob Ertel intercepted a pass and shot into an open goal at 19:01 as coach Rudy Pilous made that last desperate move of replacing Millar with an attacker.

Yogi Joins Casey

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, a New York Yankee for 18 years, joined his old boss Casey Stengel Tuesday as a coach for New York Mets. If the 39-year-old ex-catcher can get into shape during spring training he will be a player-coach and pinch hitter.

Fired as Yankee manager the day after he lost the world series to St. Louis Cardinals, Berra will benefit by a rare salary arrangement. In addition to the reported $40,000-a-year salary from the Mets he will get an additional $25,000 from the Yankees.

ESCAPE CLAUSE

Berra said that when the Yanks signed him as special field consultant after firing him as manager, the contract contained an escape clause that gave him permission to take any other offer and still get the $25,000.

"I'm not bitter," said Berra in answer to a question at a press conference. "I had 18 fine years over there. They took me off the sandlots in St. Louis when the Cardinals and Browns didn't want to sign me."

Did Berra want to manage again?

"I don't know," he said. "I worked for Casey for 12 years and I know I can learn a lot more from him. I might."

Buffalo Through With Gilchrist

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Buffalo Bills, winners of nine of 10 American Football League games but never a champion, fired fullback Cookie Gilchrist Tuesday.

"His only concern is himself and how much yardage he can gain," coach Lou Saban said of the AFL's leading ground-gainer. Gilchrist has carried 183 times this season for 751 yards. Gilchrist carried 11 times for 31 yards Sunday against Boston Patriots, who spoiled the Bills' undefeated status, 36-28. The Bills have four games to play.

MORE IMPORTANT

"Certain incidents have taken place over the last six weeks which were uncalled for, in my opinion," Saban said. "I felt we had to go without him. The club is more important than the individual's gain."

Gilchrist, who never played college football, signed as a pro directly out of high school in 1954 with Cleveland Browns of the NFL. He was dropped after a short trial.

SUSPENDED BY ARGON

He came to the Bills in 1962 after eight years in the Canadian Football League. He was suspended by Toronto Argonauts of the Eastern Conference for curfew violation. He also played at one time with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference.

It was reported that Gilchrist refused to take the field when Buffalo had the ball on its 40 with 24 seconds left in the first half of the Boston game.

IN DRESSING ROOM

Saban spoke with him in the dressing room during intermission and Gilchrist played the second half.

Gilchrist, who had asked to be traded before he signed his 1964 contract, said in a telephone interview he had expected to be let go but not at this time.

"I feel the Bills had not used my full potential as a fullback last year and this is frustrating to a professional player," he said.

MISSED PRACTICES

Gilchrist said he could not recall any incident that led to his being placed on waivers. He was reported, however, to have missed several early season practice sessions and violated curfew.

Saban said he would activate veteran Wray Carlton to replace Gilchrist. Carlton has been on the injured list since the Bills' second game. He suffered a rib injury in one of the final games of 1963.

Gilchrist, a 250-pounder, can be claimed for $100.

QUICK CLAIM

He said he would be interested in playing for either New York Jets or Oakland Raiders. The Jets quickly claimed him but cannot act until Houston Oilers, Denver Broncos, Oakland and Kansas City Chiefs waive on him.

Gilchrist, who ran for 1,086 yards in 1962 to become the AFL's first 1,000-plus gainer, also scored 15 touchdowns that year and kicked eight field goals.

Gilchrist had a brush with Buffalo police after the 1963 season. He was charged with assaulting a policeman following his arrest for traffic violations. An appeals court voided the assault charge and most of the traffic charges were dismissed.

Argos Seek Veteran For Coaching Duties

TORONTO (UPI)—Toronto Argonaut general manager Lew Hayman was waving a blank multi-year contract today, looking for "an experienced head coach... preferably one with Canadian background."

For the fourth time since he joined the Argos, Hayman was looking for a new coach. Monday he fired Nobby Wirtkowski because "he couldn't beat the worst team in football—the Montreal Alouettes."

Hayman, who admits his board of directors "really gave me hell," refused to be pinned down on names or a deadline for signing a new coach.

However, insiders believe Frank (Pop) Ivy, the onetime guiding genius of the Edmonton Eskimos during their glory years of the early 1950s, was No. 1 on Hayman's list of prospects.

Hayman refused to confirm or deny he was interested in Ivy, now a regional scout for the New York Giants. Ivy has been a head coach in the three major professional leagues—Edmonton (CFL), St. Louis (NFL) and Houston (AFL).

"I've had a couple of feelers from below the border from assistant coaches who heard the job might be open," Hayman admitted. Beyond that he declined to elaborate.

He was asked if he had spoken to Quebec Rifle coach Sam Etcheverry, who played for Ivy when both were with the St. Louis Cardinals, regarding Ivy's coaching talents. Hayman admitted "Sam and I have talked a couple of times in the past two or three weeks and we discussed several things."

Ivy has denied being offered the job and some persons close to the tall Oklahoman say he has had his fill of head coaching assignments.

Hayman, who admits that he has "the final word in hiring and firing coaches," said he would "go for experience this time." He also said he thought the new Argos coach, if experienced, "should deserve a three-year contract."

Dog-Shooter Shot By Enraged Owner

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP)—A 65-year-old hunter has been accused of wounding another hunter after the latter accidentally shot and then killed his six-year-old beagle.

Arrested and held on a charge of felonious assault was Salvatore Viscusi of Farmingville.

Ronald Hamlin, 22, of Corona,

Queens, was reported in good condition at Brookhaven Hospital. He suffered shotgun pellet wounds of the face and chest.

Police said Hamlin accidentally wounded Viscusi's dog and then put the animal out of its misery with two aimed shots. This enraged Viscusi, they said, and he turned his 12-gauge shotgun on Hamlin.

OUTDOORS with Alec Merriman

Victoria Fish and Game Club plans to call upon the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs for a toughening up of fish and game access policies.

Big problem is that while the Victoria club undertakes to man four access gates... Muir Creek, Butlers, Gordon River and 19 Creek, the latter two in the Cowichan area... and Lake Cowichan's Valley Fish and Game Club two gates... Caycuse and Meade Creek... other clubs who hunt those areas are not pulling their weight in access gate duties. Nanaimo club looks after Mayo gate and the Nanaimo watershed area.

Under the one-day gate duty every-other-year program of the Victoria club it takes 154 men to man one gate and that is a strain on even the 1,101-member Victoria club, which is the biggest fish and game club in British Columbia.

Adding to the trouble is that some Victorians, who really should belong to the Victoria club, join fish and game clubs in other areas to qualify for the fish and game access privileges, thereby escaping their proper turn at gate duty and sometimes even saving a dollar or two in membership fees.

Obviously these people... let's not call them sportsmen... are simply free-loaders.

Victoria members are unhappy because they sometimes travel 50 and 60 miles to areas manned by other clubs and find the gates closed because the persons on gate duty hadn't shown up.

They sometimes have to wait an hour or two at the best hunting time because of a slipshod gate duty system. Caycuse is one of these areas.

Victoria members are so concerned that at Monday's meeting they volunteered to take over even more of the gate duties... even if it meant driving as far as Caycuse early in the morning, and undertaking gate duty turns every year, instead of every other year.

But, first they want the access program reviewed by the Affiliated with a view to a firm policy under which other clubs would also share access duties.

The Victoria club undoubtedly has some real access problems, but its members in their concern for proper gate patrols are far off base. Their thinking is fuzzy and insular.

They have forgotten that the policy of the fish and game federation is for general public access. Fish and game access gates are supposed to be only stop-gaps while hunters win the confidence and friendship of timber companies. The gates are not to establish private hunting grounds for fish and game members. They are simply a first step to public access.

Rather than concerning itself about whether or not it can take on more gate duties, the Victoria Fish and Game Club should be working towards getting out of gate duties and persuading the companies to open the areas on a restricted non-operational hours basis to all hunters and fishermen.

This move will cost the fish and game club members... it will get rid of its free-loaders, the non-workers and some membership revenue... but nevertheless that is the direction the club should be moving.

With the exception of the gated areas mentioned before, most other logging areas controlled by big companies are opened under a general access program.

Some of the clubs the Victoria club members criticize have fought for and won public access.

Actually, the Victoria club was the strongest force for public access during legislative access committee hearings. Victoria members joined with B.C. Federation of Fish and Game Clubs to put up a strong fight for, not fish and game access, but public access... and the increased public access in the past two years is largely a result of that fight.

Have the Victoria members forgotten?

This year in the Victoria area Victoria Plywoods opened the Leechtown area... formerly a fish and game area... for general weekend access.

This is as it should be.

Now the Victoria club should go after B.C. Forest Products for general access to Muir Creek. The fish and game access has been almost a fiasco there anyway. Regularly the area is closed on opening weekend "for fire hazard reasons," and yet company employees and sub-contractor employees get free access to the lucrative first weekend shooting. After that company and sub-contractor employees get in with keys and go to areas barred to others. Fish and game members, who all carry $100,000 liability insurance, are responsible, but they don't have full control of the access.

Obviously this is an area for general public access.

The Victoria club would also be wise to join with the Valley club and seek general public access to Caycuse area. BCFF has found its Port Renfrew free public access has worked well and should be prepared to consider Caycuse as a public access area on weekends.

Fish and game general policy is to get the gates open... and Victorians should step in line.

Free Food Stall Returns Saturday

Mrs. E. E. Harper's free food stall will be in operation Saturday at 732A Cormorant Street.

Tuesday she appealed to Victorians to donate "food of any description" for distribution to the needy.

She said there is a particular need for fruit and vegetables such as apples and potatoes.

Anyone wishing to donate food can telephone Mrs. Harper at GR 4-1750 to arrange for it to be picked up.

At the present time the stall provides food for 175 families each month. Welfare cards must be presented to obtain the free food.

The stall has been in operation for the past 12 years. At times it has provided free food for up to 300 families a month.

Need Urgent

Medical School Speedup Banks' Goal

The president of the B.C. Medical Association Tuesday called for an immediate start on planning for a medical school at the University of Victoria.

Dr. Peter Banks told Victoria Kiwanis it is imperative that the public "bring home to those making political decisions" the need for early implementation of recommendations by the Hall royal commission dealing with medical education and research facilities.

The controversial medicare sections of the report have resulted in "political burly burly" which leaves other most valuable recommendations in danger of being ignored, he said.

MORE SERIOUS

The commission recommends seven new medical schools—including one in Victoria — be established in Canada within 10 years.

Even more serious than the cost factor, despite estimates of $30,000,000 to establish each new medical school, Dr. Banks said, is the shortage of teachers of basic medical sciences such as anatomy and physiology and biochemistry.

The urgency of the situation, he said, is indicated by the fact that it takes "at least seven years to train these people and it takes another seven years for them to train a doctor."

GAIN OFFSET

In the next 30 years it is estimated that Canada will need a net increase of at least 20,000 doctors.

Between 1953 and 1961 this country imported 3,815 immigrant physicians, Dr. Banks said, but this is unlikely to continue. This is equal to the output of the four largest medical schools and is offset by a loss in the last five years equivalent to the output of two of our largest medical schools.

One method of retaining in Canada teachers of the basic medical sciences, said Dr. Banks, would be to accelerate the pace of medical research.

Pyramids 'Bargain' Beside Medicare

Cost of implementing the medicare recommendations of the Hall royal commission report would "make the pyramids of Egypt seem like a $1.49 day special," Dr. Peter Banks said Tuesday.

The newly-elected president of the B.C. Medical Association told Victoria Kiwanis "it is a great tragedy that this wise report" had forsaken the detached and scientific approach "to mount the podium of an evangelist."

UNCITICAL

"Like a preacher (the commission members) use a text which they accept in its entirety uncritically. I quote 'We accept the statement of Sir Arthur Newshome — the health of every individual is of social concern and responsibility.'"

On this, Dr. Banks added,

"they proceed to build an edifice of potential irresponsibility the cost of which would make the pyramids of Egypt seem like a $1.49 day special."

NOT OPPOSED

The speaker said the Hall commission report "entirely ignores or distorts the Alberta medicare experiment with its aspects of voluntary contribution, of government subsidy for the needy and a pooling arrangement for bad risks and medically uninsurables."

Dr. Banks reiterated that the medical profession in this province wasn't against medicare and doctors did not want to try to dictate the type of insurance chosen. "We only wish to practice a higher standard of medical care for a fair fee," he said.

FREE CHOICE

"The people should be free to insure themselves against the cost of medical services however they wish—with or without government.

"We (doctors) have stated repeatedly, as our opinion only, that public monies should only be used to help defray costs of those on whom (medical insurance) is a burden."

There should be a choice ranging from full medicare to a low-premium plan covering only hospital and disaster costs, and a "middle of the road" scheme with deductibles and co-insurance factors at reasonable premium.

The Anglican young people's association of St. Dunstan's parish will meet at 7:30 p.m. today in the parish hall on Gordon Head Road.

B.C., Quebec Provide Vigor

B.C. and Quebec are contributing a new vigor to Canadian unity, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell told visiting Quebec mayors Tuesday.

He said in a speech of welcome to the mayors and their wives in the legislative chamber that both provinces seek to make Canada a greater country by being great themselves.

"Too many voices rise in this country to emphasize the differences between us," Mr. Campbell said. "But in our desire for vigor we have the same aspiration."

"These same small voices say to us that we will weaken the federal structure if the provinces take on greater strength and vigor."

Mr. Campbell added: "We in B.C. say these voices are against the Canadian idea and not for it."

The minister said Quebec through its "modern revolution" is seeking to contribute its greatness to the Canadian story.

"If all parts of Canada show great strength in the years ahead, how can it be said that we have a weak Confederation?"

"We will have a happy birthday celebration in 1967 if all parts of Canada are vigorous and great."

Susan Does It Again

Susan, a 12-year-old trained golden eagle, has laid another egg in the hand of its owner, Mrs. Adele Hyndman, of Featherland, on West Burnside. The bird, brought here as a nestling from Whitehorse, Y.T., has never met another eagle and Mrs. Hyndman's husband, Cecil, thinks the bird has a "tremendous infatuation" toward his wife. An earlier egg was shattered when Susan stepped on it.

Delighted Mayors 'Will Spread the Word'

City Returns 300 'Ambassadors' to Quebec

By A. H. MURPHY

The action-packed, color-filled visit of the Quebec mayors to Victoria was described Tuesday as "the greatest step toward betterment of Anglo-French relations ever taken in this country."

This opinion, expressed by Mayor Maurice Tessier of Rimouski, as the party of mayors and their wives were leaving Victoria, was enthusiastically supported by the president of l'Union des Municipalités, Mayor Rosaire Gendron of Rivière du Loup.

"I wonder if the people of Victoria realize the implications of these three days?" Mr. Gendron asked.

"The magnificent reception we were given means that you are sending back to Quebec 300 influential ambassadors," the Quebec municipal leader said.

"We will spread the word that in this western city, known for its advocacy of the British way of life, people are as warm and kind and hospitable as anywhere in the world."

Mr. Gendron said the mayors' happy experience here had influenced them in their decision to hold a meeting outside the province of Quebec each year.

Next year, said Mr. Gendron, the meeting might be held in Charlottetown and the following year on the prairies, possibly in Edmonton.

French-Canada had sent many delegations out of the province, said Mr. Tessier but the trouble was its members usually met only former Quebecers.

"We wanted to meet the public at large and this was made possible in Victoria. We are surprised and extremely pleased at the warmth of the welcome," said Rimouski's mayor.

Official Victoria was equally happy.

"Members of city council are pleased beyond their fondest hopes," said Ald. Austin Curtis, acting as mayor in the absence of Mayor R. B. Wilson.

"Victorians waited to see, and they found the visitors such delightful people that they took them to their hearts."

The visitors were up early on Tuesday, packed their bags and loaded them aboard buses.

They were taken to the legislative buildings where guided tours had been arranged with French-speaking commissioners in charge of small parties.

When the tour was completed, the party boarded buses and the visit to Victoria was over.

Led by a police motorcycle escort which accompanied the party wherever it moved during the visit, the mayors pulled away for the Swartz Bay ferry terminal.

No Polio Vaccine for Adults Next Year?

Poor Turnout May Cancel Clinics

Nurse Joan Murray 'sugars' vaccine for student nurse Karen Wilmott

There could be polio cases in Victoria next year but no Sabin oral anti-polio vaccine to protect adults, Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread warned Tuesday.

The senior medical health officer of the Metropolitan Board of Health pointed to the poor turnout at the current free vaccine clinics. These could be discontinued next year as a result.

Oral vaccine would still be distributed at schools and well-baby clinics.

FEW ARRIVED

B.C. health officers and the federal medical advisory board feel the little-used clinics are a waste of staff, and are considering the possibility of cancelling adult clinics next year.

At the Cook Street health centre only 115 people turned out in an afternoon for the free vaccine — two drops on a lump of sugar — and only 136 in the evening.

The same day, 5,627 children received the vaccine in the board's four school districts: Greater Victoria, Sooke, Saanich and the Gulf Islands.

NO CASES

Sabin vaccine was first administered in Victoria two years ago. Last year there were no actual cases although two were suspected.

The clinics are being held from 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. at Cook Street today; Oak Bay Friday; Saanich Thursday; Esquimalt Thursday; Langford Friday; and Sidney Wednesday and Friday.

At Sooke the clinic is open from 10 a.m. to 12 noon and 6 to 8 p.m. Friday; Jordan River, Wednesday 10 to 11 a.m., and Port Renfrew Wednesday 5 to 6 p.m.

Hunter Trials Set Sunday

Beaver Lake field will be the scene of Garden City Horsemen's Club hunter trials at 1 p.m. Sunday.

There will be an unlimited entry for the combination play day and hunter trials event.

Frank Reder To Speak For Trustees

B.C. School Trustees' Association secretary Frank Reder will present the Greater Victoria School Board's brief to an arbitration board when it convenes to hear a dispute over teachers' salary demands.

Seen in Passing

The school board has named Kenneth C. Murphy as its nominee to the arbitration board and district teachers have chosen Hazel Hudson. The two nominees will choose a neutral chairman.

A previous story said Mr. Reder would be the third member of the board.

Lum Claims 'Forces' Working Against Him

Another scene in the Saanich byelection drama unfolded Tuesday night as defeated reeveship candidate Edward Lum said forces were at work to keep him off council.

Mr. Lum said "certain members of council 'may be out to get me but why I don't know.'"

The 36-year-old greenhouse operator, who lost the reeveship to Hugh Curtis by 127 votes, defended his action in employing Western Detective Services to inquire into the byelection.

NOT ATTACKING ANYONE

"We're not attacking the integrity of anyone," he said. "We want to find out what happened and hope to make sure future elections are above reproach."

In a report to council Monday night Returning Officer Gordon Hayward said the inquiry leaned towards "unwarranted attacks on the integrity and ability" of election workers.

R. E. Wood, Manager of Western Detective Services, said the inquiry was to "find or locate the cause which led to this error."

NO INTIMIDATION

"At no time was any election staff member intimidated or interfered with by the investigator," Mr. Wood said.

Mr. Lum earlier said the cost of the inquiry is being paid by himself and his supporters.

He said he doesn't think the inquiry will hamper his chances in the Dec. 12 election when he will try for one of the three council seats.

Regarding Mr. Hayward's suggestion that Mr. Lum could have asked for an official inquiry, the defeated candidate said he was "not prepared to have the taxpayers pay for the inquiry."

Four-Hour Misunderstanding

Woolco Clears Shift Complaint

Saanich Coun. Leslie Passmore has something in common with Woolco department store — working hours.

Recent complaints about the store's hours (10 a.m. to 10 p.m., six days a week) caused Coun. Passmore to investigate. He found the store's shift system is similar to the operation used by his employers, Victoria Machinery Depot.

NEW SHIFT

Coun. Passmore told council Monday night the store has one shift working from 9 a.m. to 6:15 p.m. and then has a completely new shift from 6:15 to 10:15 p.m.

"All this extra work means employment for many people," Coun. Passmore explained.

He said the minimum wage is $1.25 an hour and that no one works more than eight hours a day or 40 hours a week.

The Victoria Labor Council complained in a letter to council that the store's hours "create an undesirable trend."

Council voted to write the labor council explaining that the store is breaking no municipal, provincial or federal regulations.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Dave and I have been going together for three years. He is now a junior in college and we plan to be married when he graduates.

Recently when I gave a pint of blood to a friend who was injured in an accident I learned my blood type is O negative. Dave was upset when I told him because he is a B positive. He says it is possible that we could have a child who would survive because of the differences in our blood types.

After hours of talking it over Dave told me perhaps we should break our engagement and go separate ways. I love him and I was certain he loved me, but now I'm so distraught I'm not even sure of my own name. Please tell me if Dave is right about this or whether it could be an excuse to break off with me? Thank you.—INDIGO

Dear Indigo: The combination of your blood type and Dave's could indeed produce children with blood problems.

Many years ago such babies died, and no one knew why. Today when physicians know of this condition in advance (and yours will) the babies can be given transfusions at birth and grow up to be well and healthy.

I suggest you and Dave go to a specialist. He will give you the facts.

Dear Ann Landers: At the risk of sounding like a broken record I'm going to ask a question you've probably answered dozens of times. I have yet to see a practical solution anywhere.

I'm fed to the tonsils with bridal showers and baby showers. Today I have to go out and buy six gifts. It is impossible to avoid these little parties because my sisters, my sister-in-law, my mother-in-law, my cousins and neighbors are all invited and we are a closely-knit group. We are all expected to show up.

Do you have an answer? Sign me—FINANCIALLY EM-BARRASSED

Dear FinEm: At the risk of sounding like a broken record myself, here's the answer for the umpteenth time: Get together with your sisters, your sister-in-law, mother-in-law—pitch in $1 each and buy one useful gift. This makes more sense than six rubber ducks or a half dozen pairs of booties.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a girl 15 with an unusual problem—people insist on giving me their old clothes.

My parents are not rich or poor—but sort of in the middle. I have all the clothes I need and I've always felt neatly dressed. Yet the women I baby-sit for, my grandmother's housekeeper and the ladies from my mother's church auxiliary are forever dropping off boxes of dresses their children have outgrown or just got tired of.

I know these people mean well and I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings but they are either too large or too small, or I just don't like the way they look on me.

I've thought of accepting the clothes gracefully then throwing them out, but this doesn't seem right. Please tell me what to do.—SHMOTTAS

Dear Shmottas: Thank the people nicely, let them know you appreciate their kindness but tell them you don't need extra clothes. Suggest they call Goodwill Industries. This wonderful organization makes sure the used clothing gets into the hands of those who do need this kind of help.

Pleads for the Hungry

"It is always the same two things that strike me in visiting the less fortunate countries of the East—the great need and the great gratitude of the people."

Those were the words spoken by Dr. Lotta Hitchmanova, executive director of the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada, yesterday.

Dr. Hitchmanova is on her annual visit to raise funds for USC to provide food and clothing for hungry people of the world.

There will be a public meeting tonight in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall at 7:30 p.m. when the director will talk about the work being done to alleviate suffering in many lands. She will also show a film, Light for a Dark Journey.

"This has been an exciting year and our work has pushed forward at an increased rate. There are literally thousands of people alive today because of the clothing depot and the work group is under the convener'ship of Mrs. Eric Dowell.

99 Today

Mrs. Edith Draper, West Bay Private Hospital, who will be 99 years old today, still does her bit for UNC. She makes quilts, by hand, to bring comfort and warmth to persons not as fortunate as herself.

the help from warm-hearted Canadians," she said.

"Right here in Victoria, 30,000 pounds of clothing have been shipped to us."

Dowell's Cartage and Storage

WI SUPPORT "Without the tremendous support of the Women's Institutes and other loyal friends, we just couldn't operate," says Dr. Lotta.

Colwood WI and Sooke WI members meet at Colwood every Monday afternoon to patch, mend, darn and fix the clothing that otherwise would be useless for shipping. Last year they did this work on 700 pounds of used clothes.

ONE GRAIN OF RICE

Dr. Hitchmanova can tell you moving stories from lands where hunger rides with many all their lives. She recalls seeing a woman in Hong Kong seated on the road. She was feeding her three children from a small bowl. One grain of rice at a time for each child. No wonder the children savor every morsel of food.

Dr. Hitchmanova said that UNC is still 1174 short in the 3050 basic layettes pledged to the UN for Arab refugee babies in the Gaza Strip. She is making an appeal for donations to these layettes—four diapers, two nighties, two shirts, two vests, one blanket, one towel, one cake of laundry soap and four large safety pins.

These necessities need not be new but they should not be worn.

She is also appealing for cardigans, size 6 and over, heeled stockings and warm, practical clothing for both adults and children. Let these be clean and with at least six months wear left in them, she pleads.

Floppy Hats

Tall Girls Smarter

EDMONTON (CP)—The height of folly is wanting to be short, says a manager of a store specializing in catering to the needs of tall women.

Mrs. F. Schultens, whose tallest customer is six-foot-six, said she's never heard tall women complain about their height. "On the contrary, tall women are usually proud of those extra inches. They walk proudly, too."

With her when she spoke was Mrs. Peter McDougall, five-foot-five inches. She said she never wanted to be shorter than she is. "Tall girls are just as smart, probably smarter, than shorter girls. Fashionwise, we can do so many outlandish things the shorter girls can't get away with—like wearing huge, floppy hats. On a short girl they look ridiculous; on a tall girl, they're smart."

A hot turkey luncheon will follow the official opening of St. Andrew's Cathedral bazaar being held Saturday in the White Eagle Hall, 90 Dock Street, by the Catholic Women's League. Mrs. H. Bruch will open the annual affair at 11 a.m. Showing some of the interesting items

Metropolitan

Bazaar Raises $1,000

Victorians flocked into Metropolitan United Church Saturday afternoon to look, to buy and to visit over a cup of tea at the fall bazaar and tea put on by the Multiple Sclerosis Golden Key Auxiliary.

More than $1,000 was raised at the annual affair which was opened by Mrs. D. L. Brothers. The special guest was introduced by Mrs. Olive Campbell, auxiliary president.

A beautiful arrangement of mauve chrysanthemums and pink carnations with three tiny white candles centred the tea table which was presided over by Mrs. G. Norris, Mrs. A. Wills, Mrs. A. R. Owens, Mrs. C. Conrad, Mrs. A. Crawford and Mrs. L. Morgan.

Centring the individual guest tables were baby chrysanthemums on a tiny gold "hope chest," symbol of the MS Society. A huge golden key, another symbol, over the letters MS, was prominently displayed over the main entrance.

One of the first stalls to be completely sold out in less than an hour was the ever-popular home baking table. Also a favorite was the jewelry table filled with attractive pieces and sets made from polished Vancouver Island rock.

Special attraction for little girls was the table of Barbie Doll clothes and among these exquisitely crafted ensembles were fur-trimmed coats with matching hats and purses. This particular stall was a new venture this year and proved to be most successful.

Mrs. O. H. Lamont was general convener. Mrs. Norma Loomer convoked the afternoon tea and was assisted by Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. F. Lesley.

Cervicures were: Mrs. C. Gibbart, Mrs. G. Marsden, Mrs. I. Ritchie, Mrs. D. McConnell, the Misses Veronica Marsden, and Sandra Hawkes, Mrs. E. Robson, Mrs. M. Sistrerom, Mrs.

Art Cann, Mrs. R. Lejeune and members of the Oak Bay Spade Club.

Assisting in the kitchen were Mrs. M. Marsh, Mrs. M. Martin, Mrs. E. Cooper, Mrs. C. Lokken, Mrs. M. Jones, Mrs. J. Champion and Mrs. D. Kinsinger, all members of Women of the Moose.

Tea tickets, door prizes and donations were looked after by Mrs. T. Curran and her assistants were Mrs. B. Waddington, Mrs. F. A. Goodwin and Mrs. O. Tomlin.

Other conveners and assistants were Mrs. E. Aitken, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. A. E. Pondray and Mrs. E. Smith; Mrs. B. Norton, Mrs. M. Dingee, Mrs. L. McAllister, Mrs. G. Morran, and Mrs. G. B. Duncan and Mrs. R. Bewell.

Working on the bake table were Mrs. P. Nugent, Miss E. S. McGillivray, Mrs. M. Scoby, Mrs. J. Houston, Miss A. Dougan, Miss G. Durkin.

Regina

RN in Two Years

REGINA (CP)—Sixteen girls who have graduated from an experimental nursing course at Regina Grey Nuns Hospital can expect their careers to be watched closely.

They have obtained diplomas as registered nurses after a training period of two years — one year less than the registered nursing courses offered in other Canadian hospitals.

Grey Nuns officials hope that if the shortened course proves successful it will become standard practice and help alleviate nursing shortages plaguing many areas.

Dr. V. L. Mathews, head of the department of social and preventive medicine at the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon and former associate deputy minister of health in Saskatchewan, said Sunday in addressing the graduation class here:

"The graduates of this new program can be compared to a new car on the market. They will be watched with critical eyes for their performances."

EXPERIMENTS NEEDED

He said nursing education had gone basically unchanged for 30 years and there was a need for more experiments of this type.

Sister Therese Castonguay, director of the Grey Nuns School of Nursing, said the shortened course is designed to attract more girls into the profession by making the training period shorter.

It will also allow more girls to be trained in existing facilities.

Bellboy Blocks Robbery But Heroism Costs Job

NEW ORLEANS — Fifteen-year-old Paul D. Anthony is unemployed because he blocked a holdup at a motel where he worked as a substitute bellboy.

It all started Sunday. Paul, at home, telephoned the motel room clerk, Joseph F. Gillin. Next, Gillin told Paul to "hold on" and Gillin put the phone down.

The next thing Paul heard Gillin say was "Please don't kill me," and I hung up and called the police," said Paul.

Then he ran for the nearby motel, arriving just in time to see Gillin, prodded along by the gunman, walk out of the office and into that of an adjacent motel.

Mrs. Nhu

When a police car arrived, Paul gave directions.

The officers seized Donald Lee Hawke, 22, of Arlington, Tex.

Paul was a hero and obliged reporters with a little of his background. He would be 15 on Dec. 17.

Everybody was happy—except Hawkins and the Louisiana labor department.

A department representative, reading of young Paul's exploit, promptly notified the motel that he is too young to work.

Under state law, he can't get a work permit until he turns 16 and then may be employed "only until 6 p.m." That eliminated him from his 3-to-11 p.m. substitute bellhop job.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu's year-old bill at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel has been paid by South Viet Nam. A cheque for $1,100 from the South Vietnamese embassy in Washington was received by the hotel Monday.

SACKVILLE, N.B. — Mrs. Margaret Blissett, newly-elected Liberal member of Parliament for Westmorland, Tuesday was taken to hospital with head injuries received in a morning traffic accident. Police said her car left a snow-covered highway after striking an icy section.

SYDNEY, Australia — An Australian laborer whose wife hit him on the head with a wine bottle after he ate her pet rooster was fined $10 here for firing six rifle shots near her feet. Heinz Muller, 33, said he was angered by his wife's attack on him and "wanted to make her dance, like they do in the cowboy films."

WASHINGTON — President and Mrs. Johnson Tuesday celebrated the 30th anniversary of their marriage.

MIAMI — Federal Commissioner Edward Swan has granted the government an additional continuance on charges against Alvin Karpis, 36, water salvage expert, and Jack Murphy, 27, water clown, when the government failed to produce evidence that linked the two with jewels taken from the New York Museum of Natural History.

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. — Red Adair, internationally known oil and natural gas well fire expert, was expected to arrive today at the Blueberry oil field 100 miles northwest of Dawson Creek to help extinguish a natural gas injection well fire burning out of control.

OTTAWA — Convicted "Santa Claus" killer George Marcotte, 23, will have to wait at least until today to find out whether he will hang as scheduled, Dec. 4. The Supreme Court of Canada postponed until today its hearing of Marcotte's appeal for commutation of his death sentence.

OCEAN FALLS (CP) — Two charges of capital murder were laid Tuesday against Roy Hanuse, about 21, in connection with the double murder of the parents of 13 children.

Police said John Hanuse, 41, and his wife Aggie, 36, were shot to death early Sunday, and a daughter was raped at the Owikim Indian Reserve, 60 miles south of here.

Roy Hanuse is not related to the victims, said police.

HOLLYWOOD — The script called for actress Ann Margret to throw an ashtray at actor Alain Delon, who plays her husband in a movie. Director Ralph Nelson, crouching beside the camera coached: "Throw it— with all your might!" She did— just as Nelson stood up—and he caught the flying ashtray on his forehead. It took 19 stitches to close the wound.

HONOLULU — Restaurant employee Henry Ing is recovering from a thigh wound caused by a buffalo. Ing was herding five water buffaloes into a corral near the Halaku Gardens restaurant when they all turned on him.

AMMAN, Jordan — Sheikh Abdullah al-Qasbi, Mufti of Jordan, has issued a ruling that birth control is permissible. "If the government decides on such a course, it is binding to comply with it," the Mufti said.

BALTIMORE — A 35-year-old mother of four gave birth to four more children Monday night. Hospital officials said Mrs. Betty Reyes, and the quadruplets — three girls and a boy — were all doing fine. The father, Angel Reyes, is a private in the U.S. Army.

LOS ANGELES — Composer Albert May Malotte, 69, who set The Lord's Prayer to music, died Monday night at his home. He suffered a cerebral hemorrhage in 1962 and had been in ill health since.

Guild Play Needs Five Men

Wanted: Five men!
This is not for a safari into darkest Africa nor yet for duty as astronauts.

The Theatre Guild is "desperately" in need of those five men to fill the male roles in the forthcoming play, Portrait in Black.

Further casting auditions will be held at 21 Douglas Street at 8 p.m. Thursday.

There are also three female parts; not quite enough to go around among five men. However, anyone interested in any phase of theatrical production—and there are many such phases—is cordially invited to attend these tryouts.

Portrait director is Bruce Banyard.

Defence Questions Victim of Beating

Nicola Zegarie, 24, was cross-examined by defence lawyers Robert Price and Cecil Branson Tuesday at the second session of the assize court trial of Rodney Leeson, 22, and Gary McWhirter, 22.

Under cross-examination Zegarie said he didn't know how he got away from the scene of the beating.

"I was stunned," he said. "I don't know if I was staggering, crawling or what I was doing."

Zegarie said he was out of hospital and back to work in about five days after the beating.

He said he had come to B.C. from Flin Flon, Man.

During cross-examination court was recessed until 10:30 a.m. today.

The jury is composed of 11 men and one woman. Mr. Justice D. R. Verchere is presiding. J. Alan Baker, Q.C. and George MacMinn are acting for the Crown.

Street Victimized

Residents Unite To Fight Vandals

Angry Charlton Road residents are banding together in an attempt to control "hoodlum kids" who are vandalizing their street.

Latest victim was Roy M. Birkett, 1524 Charlton, who had his mailbox knocked down Monday night.

"This is nothing. Our street has been the target for vandals for the past eight months. It has been the same all the way down the street. Almost every house has been attacked," Mr. Birkett said.

"We have now hired a lawyer to get to the bottom of this thing. We will share the costs. There are certain youths whom we suspect strongly of being responsible. They are a group of hoodlum kids," he said.

BOLD

"They smashed the windshield of my truck the night before Halloween and they were bold enough to smash the window of my home in front of my wife. She can identify one of them," he said.

Britons Unearth Ancient Tomb

CAIRO (Reuters)—A British archaeological team digging at Saqqara, near Cairo, has discovered an ancient Egyptian burial ground and partially unearthed an important tomb dating back nearly to 3000 B.C. in the third dynasty.

SUGAR SOURCE

Cambodians collect nectar for sugar from the flowers of toddy palms, 50 feet above ground, by using bamboo poles.

Housebreakers Hit Unoccupied Homes

Drivers Lose In Raid On Trucks

Seven laundry truck drivers lost personal effects to vandals who jimmed the doors of Economy Steam Laundry trucks Monday night.

The trucks were parked overnight on a lot near the laundry plant at 607 John Street when they were entered.

A laundry spokesman said some vandalism, including the slashing of laundry bags, had occurred but the trucks are fully insured.

"I guess the drivers bore the brunt of the losses this time, although they were very minor."

Housebreakers tried four times Sunday and Monday to enter temporarily unoccupied Esquimalt homes. They failed three times and succeeded once.

Esquimalt police said Tuesday the home of E. S. Gilbert, 1128 Old Esquimalt Road, was entered Monday but nothing was taken.

An ice pick or drill was used to pierce the door. A coiled wire then was twisted through the opening to flip the lock open.

Similar attempts to break in failed at 451 Fraser, 1150 Greenwood and 916 Dunsmuir.

Check Those Bulbs

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

It is about time now to take another look at those gladiolus bulbs we dug up earlier this fall. If the bulbs have been dried off and ripened properly, they should be about ready now to be cleaned up, dusted, and moved into cooler storage.

If you remember, at lifting time I recommended that the tops be cut down to just above the bulb, and the bulbs stored temporarily in a warm room, in shallow boxes or trays, until the drying and ripening processes are completed.

My bulbs have been sitting on my work bench in our cosy furnace room, 75 to 80 degrees, complete with roots, spawn, dirt and all, as I never bother much about cleaning them at digging time.

The only treatment they received was a squirt of rose dust to kill off any pests or disease spores which may have been brought indoors with them.

During this period of drying and ripening in the warmth, a curious change takes place within the tissues of the bulb. A layer of cork-like cells forms on their surface, particularly on the base of the new bulb, and when the process is completed, the withered-up last-year's bulb can be twisted off without any trouble at all.

If the old, spent bulb doesn't come away cleanly and all in one piece, it is a pretty sure sign that the curing and ripening process hasn't yet finished, and the bulbs must be left in the warmth a little longer.

In my younger days I broke many a fingernail trying to pry old and new bulbs apart before I learned this simple rule.

The clean-up job is quite simple. Just twist off the old bulb and discard it. Peel away the weatherbeaten outer skin, and your new bulb emerges in all its shimmering beauty.

Set these aside in a clean box, keeping your varieties separated so you won't get them all mixed up. The old dried roots, spent bulbs and discarded skins are best burnt or otherwise disposed of in some sanitary way, for we had a lot of thrrips and disease on glads last summer.

If you would like to try your hand at growing some of the baby bulbules or "spawn," pick out the plumpest, discarding the very small fry, and shake them up with a spoonful of rose or garden dust.

Store in paper bags labelled as to variety and color. These can be sprouted in damp sand next spring, then planted out like peas to plump themselves up.

It isn't likely that any of them will bloom next year, but if you grow them well through the summer, giving them plenty of water, you'll harvest a nice batch of smallish but flowering-size gladiolus next fall.

From now until next spring, the cleaned gladiolus bulbs must be kept in an uncomfortably chilly place where the temperature hovers somewhere between 35 and 45 degrees. This cool storage is very necessary, for if aired at too high a temperature the bulbs would start sprouting far too early in the year, like potatoes in a too-warm basement.

The cleaned bulbs are given another squirt of garden dust—rose dust, potato dust, tomato dust or Spergon gladiolus dust are all good for this purpose—this time paying particular attention to the soft and newly-exposed root scar on the bottom, and are then placed in cool storage.

I have yet to find anything more convenient than old nylon stockings, hung from a rafter in a very cool corner of the basement, and with strings tied around the stocking to separate the different varieties.

Wicked Fellows Make Good

By JOHN CROSBY

LONDON—Once upon a time, not so long ago, there was a monstrous plot to overthrow the United States government.

There were these 10 Hollywood screenwriters who were writing movies for Ann Sheridan—you can see them to this very day on the Late, Late Show—and concealed in these innocent fables about a bad girl who turns good for love of John Wayne, was infinitely cunning Communist propaganda, so diabolically conceived that no one could detect it.

In fact, no one can find it to this very day, that's how secret it was. They're clever fellows, these Communists.

However, it wasn't clever enough to fool the monstrously wise patriots of the House Un-American Activities Committee. They knew Communist propaganda when they saw it, even when it was as cunning as this.

The Hollywood Ten, as well as many other writers, were unmasked for what they were—spies, saboteurs, subversives, and all-round no-goods, and they were disgraced and condemned to perpetual oblivion and exile.

They all suffered horribly. Dalton Trumbo, one of the original Hollywood Ten, was reduced to the ignominy of writing scripts under assumed names, which made him fountains of money. He was forced to spend the stuff in silence—and what is the fun of that?

Another of these disgraced writers, Carl Foreman, was exiled to Europe, where he was driven by penury to write and produce The Guns of Navarone, which made so much money that he hasn't succeeded in counting it all to this very day.

Another of these wicked fellows was named Jules Dassin. He was driven, by the outraged whips of public opinion, to Greece, where he met a lovely girl called Melina Mercouri and made a movie called Never on Sunday. He not only made tons of money, he got Melina Mercouri as well. You see to what depths treason can bring you.

Perhaps the most unfortunate of all is a fellow named Harry Kurnitz. He was driven in despair away from the fleshpots of Hollywood, which he greatly loved, and took up his abode in Paris, a small outpost in the wilderness near a river called the Seine, and there as penance he was forced to spend time at a typewriter.

Under this terrible lash he produced a couple of plays which have made him rich. He lives, poor fellow, in penury on Gloria Guinness's yacht. So deep in his disgrace that they row him back and forth in the dead of night between Sam Spiegel's yacht and Gloria Guinness's yacht. Months go by and he never sees the sight of land.

They call him the man without a country. (Whenever he does touch port, he is allowed to see no one but Frank Sinatra, another form of cruel and unusual punishment.)

Well, that's the horrible fate that happens to screenwriters, children, who try to insert Communist propaganda in movies—especially propaganda that no one can find. (They're examining some of these pictures frame by frame and someday they'll find it. It's in there some place.)

So let that be a lesson to you. But, there's a happy ending to all this. A great reward came to the people of California, who were the first to recognize the terrible danger the government of the United States was in and who did so much to rescue everyone from these terrible plots.

It's been a long time in coming, but the people of California have finally been granted the gift they so richly deserve—Senator George Murphy.

Edward G. In Form

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Edward G. Robinson has Seven Arts and Paramount very high on his Boy, Ten Feet Tall picture. It was called, Sammy Goes South, and Eddie had that heart attack while making it two years ago in Africa. At the time a relative of his told me he would never make another film. Eddie has certainly had the last laugh on that one. He has been working hard ever since. And now he is replacing Spencer Tracy in The Cincinnati Kid.

Paul Muni's serious heart attack made me wonder why he had been so conspicuous by his absence from the screen during the last decade and more. He was one of the finest actors ever in Hollywood. And so conscientious that he acted his role during the making of a picture, whether he was in front of the camera or not. And heaven help you if you tried to talk to him on the set. He would be so deep in his part that he wanted no part of anyone unconnected with the role.

Ann-Margret has a date coming up in Gay Paree to meet the French press for the first time and they are drooling while waiting. It's all to talk about her forthcoming picture for Marty Ransohoff, The Queen of the Apaches. She will zoom over there when she finishes her current picture, One a Thief, in California with Alain Delon.

Ransohoff was discussing Elizabeth Taylor who is starring in his current film in Paris. "She is never late, always knows her lines." He told me something I hadn't known before about Elizabeth's serious illness that time in London. "When she was dying, when all the drugs had failed, a doctor gave her some aspirin through the nose. It brought down her temperature and that's what saved her life."

It's one thing to dodge the slings and pot shots of the critics but Sam Goldwyn Junior found himself ducking real live bullets during his three day tour of South Viet Nam cities for his film, The Young Lovers. Sam says it was one of his most unforgettable film forays and he has absolutely no plans to return there.

Eddie Fisher is having some problems about some of his bills for the hotels in Puerto Rico and New York. An executive of one chain was telling me yesterday that the company is taking action because of claimed unpaid bills. "But Eddie earns so much money, I find this hard to believe," said I. Well, it seems that Eddie has not given up gambling at all those casinos. As Fritz Loewe could tell him, he who lingers at the tables, can expect to lose a fortune.

Both Laurence Harvey and Richard Burton say they have had it as far as wanting to do the film version of Camelot. Larry is doing the musical in London, but is adamant about leaving the show after his six months expires in February. The role is demanding and exhausting. Burton did it on Broadway. Nonetheless, I'll take another bet. That one of them will repeat as King Arthur on the silver screen.

I am sure that Noel Coward is wishing he had waited for Beatrice Lillie to play the High Spirits Madame Arcati role in the London stage version. The show over there was slaughtered. And that's a shame. Because with Bea and Tammy Grimes, it's hilarious.

Forrest Tucker flew to Los Angeles to discuss a TV series at Warners... and now that Steve McQueen is so popular and all, a picture he made in 1958 is being released. It's called The Blob and Steve played the title role.

Squirrels Create Moral Dilemma

By JACK SMITH

I am comforted to find that men are still concerned themselves with problems of consequence, and coming up with courageous and rational answers.

I am particularly heartened by the men out at the Los Angeles Country Club who have finally faced up to the problem of the squirrels picking up their golf balls.

The matter was taken up at length in the club's bulletin for November, and dealt with, I believe, with honesty and dispatch. "The squirrels on the south course," the bulletin observed,

"have acquired a liking for golf balls. This is particularly true around the 11th green."

"They not only have interfered with balls in play but on some occasions have made off with them, much to the exasperation of the owners. A rapid pursuit has resulted in some of them being forced to drop their prizes. In other cases, they have disappeared up the trees with the balls in their mouths."

Naturally, the bulletin pointed out, questions arose as to what should be done by an exasperated golfer whose ball disappeared up a tree in the mouth of a squirrel.

Not being a golfer, and perhaps not a gentleman, I can think of a number of ways of dealing with this problem.

One would be to poison the squirrels. This, of course, would create a dead-squirrel problem that might be even worse than a live-squirrel problem. And certainly it would offend those members who love squirrels.

I am happy to say that poison or any other form of violence never occurred to the directors of the Country Club. They concerned themselves only with the moral problem posed for the golfer himself, by a squirrel carrying off his ball, and never for a moment thought of resolving this problem by destroying the squirrel.

The crux of the problem is this: Is the ball at rest when it is picked up by the squirrel, or moving?

If the ball is at rest," the bulletin says, "when taken by the squirrel, the player shall replace the ball."

This derives, it is explained, from rule 27-1A of the rules of golf, concerning the effect upon balls of "outside agencies."

A squirrel, according to the thinking of the Los Angeles Country Club, is an outside agency.

Now, if the ball merely hits the squirrel and bounces off, it must be played from where it lies. But if the squirrel picks up the ball and carries it away, the golfer may play another ball from the location where he saw the squirrel pick up his first ball.

If the golfer doesn't see the squirrel pick the ball up, of course, you have another problem altogether.

A golfer might say, "I can't find my ball, which ought to be right here. Therefore, I assume it was picked up and carried off by a squirrel. So I shall play another ball from here, without penalty."

If I were a member of the club, and somebody I was playing against claimed a squirrel took his ball, I would want to see the squirrel.

But they are headed in the right direction at the Country Club. Men must face up to the interference of outside agencies in their lives, and come to solutions based on mutual trust.

Gracie Here Tonight

By BERT BENNY

Gracie Fields, Britain's ambassador of good cheer, plays a single performance at the Royal Theatre this evening.

Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. and, after that, most anything can happen. Gracie doesn't always stick closely to the demands of a printed program. She gives her audiences what she thinks they would like.

And her repertoire of more than 500 songs ranges from grand opera to her famous comic numbers, romantic ballads and caricatures.

And, as a veteran of slightly more than 50 years on the stage, screen and TV, she should be pretty adept at sensing just what her listeners would really like to hear.

So be ready for Carmen or The Biggest Aspidochelone or any one of a score of love ditties.

Gracie can—and probably will—provide any and all of them.

Court Ruling Due Today On Arrest of Governor

BRASILIA (UPI)—The Brazilian Supreme Court is expected to rule today on whether the army can arrest Goulart Governor Mauro Borges on charges of smuggling nuclear minerals to Communist countries.

The case has aroused nationwide controversy. Borges is a popular leader of Brazil's largest political party and the son of a distinguished statesman.

The "hard-line" generals and reformers who staged last April's revolution, however, contend he is a grafter who worked hand in glove with Communists during the presidency of left-winger Joao Goulart.

Borges asked the Supreme Court for a "preventive habeas corpus" which in Brazilian law is a court order forbidding his arrest until his trial. He is due to be tried by a military court at Juiz de Fora near Rio de Janeiro under the national security law.

Most serious charge against Borges is that he used a mining company as a front for contraband shipments of atomic ores to Iron Curtain countries. He is also accused of giving Communists key jobs.

BACKGROUND

In a Sao Paulo press conference, meanwhile, Gov. Athemar de Barros said a diary seized from a Brazilian Communist leader might contain the background for the government's accusations against Borges.

De Barros also disclosed that the governors of the states of Sao Paulo, Santa Catarina, Maranhao, Espirito Santo, Mato Grosso, Parana and Rio Grande do Sul have subscribed a pledge of "unrestricted support for and trust in the government of President Humberto Castello Branco." The manifesto also announces Castello Branco's presidential candidacy in the 1966 elections.

Wind Spreading Radioactive Dust

TORONTO (CP)—Winds have been blowing radioactive dust for miles around the Elliot Lake mining area, Donald C. MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader of Ontario said Tuesday.

He said the dust came from "tailings," the residue left from uranium mining operations in the area.

"The magnitude of the neglect in protecting the public welfare in this connection should not be missed. As the tailings dried, the winds have been blowing radioactive dust for miles around."

City Praised By Albernis

PORT ALBERNI—The Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce went on record Tuesday as congratulating Mayor Wilson and Victoria's city council for playing host to Quebec mayors.

The motion, made by Port Mayor Les Hammer, commended Victoria's action toward "honouring at this critical stage of our history." It followed a speech to the weekly Chamber meeting by Victoria Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, who described the visit.

FATHER OF SIX

Duncan resident Louis Williams, 32, the father of six children, died almost instantly at the Gordon River camp of Western Forest Industries Ltd. near Honeyman Bay. He and three other fallers were clearing a right of way when a tree fell on him.

Richard Helem, 18, son of Dr.

and Mrs. E. V. Helem of Port Alberni, died in hospital in that city 32 hours after his motorcycle and a car collided.

Donald Robinson, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samson Robinson of Port Alberni, was in critical condition in hospital with head injuries suffered when hit by a pickup truck near a busy intersection just after dusk.

Doc Nicoll Loses Bid

NANAIMO (Special)—The Nanaimo court of revision, ordered by the B.C. Supreme Court to rehear R. E. (Doc) Nicoll's appeal, Tuesday rejected his bid for a 50 per cent cut in assessment for properties on Gabriola and Breckwater islands.

It also rejected his call for a royal commission on taxation, supported his demand for a review of the farm classification in assessments and ordered an increase in assessments for Mr. Nicoll's Gabriola neighbors in 1965.

One Shot in Neck

Two Swans Felled By Hunter's Gun

By GARY WEBSTER

CAMPBELL RIVER—Two weekend rifle shots at two trumpeter swans, which are protected under the B.C. Game Act, killed one of the birds and wounded the other so badly it cannot fly.

The shooting, on the Gold River Road about eight miles west of Strathcona Park, occurred late Sunday, but the unidentified Elk River Co. employee who discovered it was unable to report it for 24 hours.

The workman was returning to the company's Camp 10 in the park area when he saw the swans in a large pond, one dead but the other thrashing about.

Conservation officer George Taylor of Campbell River, notified Monday, went to the scene Tuesday morning with diver Stan McKay of the Tahsis Co. and this reporter.

Mr. McKay swam out to the middle of the pond to recover the dead swan, which had been shot in the neck.

The three men were unable to corner the other bird, which had been shot in the wing but was still frisky enough to avoid capture. Another effort to save it will be made soon.

Mr. Taylor, who said a rifle was used, is continuing his investigations.

Five trumpeter swans were shot in this area last Dec. 4. The Campbell River Fish and Game Club offered a $500 reward in the case but no one was ever apprehended.

It was not known Tuesday if a reward would be offered this time.

Strachan at Britannia:

We Can't Allow Town's Murder

BRITANNIA BEACH (CP)—NDP opposition leader Robert Strachan visited Britannia's closed copper mine Tuesday and told striking miners the provincial government shouldn't stand idly by and "allow a community to be murdered."

He toured the strike-closed mine and the adjoining Britannia Beach, with MLA Alex B. Macdonald.

"We aren't interested in surveys and other stalling tactics," he said during a short address to the International Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Union. "What we need is action."

NEGOTIATING SALE

The miners struck Aug. 11 for more pay and shorter hours. The company said it was closing down the operation for good, but at last report was negotiating sale of the property to an undisclosed buyer.

The union appealed to the government to step into the dispute, but was told there was no authority for such action.

"In the past the government has found ways and means to take legislative action for things they said couldn't be done," said Mr. Strachan.

Night School

Classes Do 'Half A Job'

Greater Victoria school district's adult education division is doing only half the job it could do, trustees were told Monday.

John Dalgleish, director of adult education, outlined a number of specific ideas for improving the night-school program.

He said the academic courses used were designed for children. "We have to teach people to use their heads, not memorize things."

GUIDANCE CENTRE
In addition to adult text books, he called for a guidance centre where adult students could receive program instruction.

He suggested that in some future school renovation plans a room be provided as a full-time centre. This would help slow students to catch up and advanced students to press on even further.

He asked trustees to seek changes in department of education regulations which require that capital equipment be paid for in the year it is purchased. It should be paid for over a period of time.

BIGGER STAFF
Mr. Dalgleish also urged an increase in administration staff so that the program could be expanded.

Lloyd Clarkson, adult education chairman for the board, will set up a committee to meet municipal councils and discuss the financing in Mr. Dalgleish's suggestions.

Customs policeman and kidnap trunk

Faint Cries Foil Kidnap

ROME (UPI) — Egyptian embassy officials attempted Tuesday to smuggle a bound, gagged and drugged Moroccan out of Italy in an air freight crate marked "diplomatic baggage" but were foiled when an airport guard heard muffled cries.

Police uncovered what appeared to be a bizarre kidnap attempt when the guard heard the faint cries coming from the leather-bound crate as it was about to be loaded onto a United Arab Republic jet liner bound for Cairo.

The crate was addressed to the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Police confirmed they were investigating the incident but they declined to release any details. They identified the man in the crate as Joseph Dahhan, 30, from Morocco, and said he arrived here two days ago from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Airport sources said two U.A.R. embassy officials brought the crate to the airport.

The sources said Dahhan told police he had been kidnapped

Monday night near Via Veneto, Rome's gay nightlife strip. He said he was hit on the head, forced into the car and later given injections that put him to sleep.

They said when the suspicious airport guard stopped the loading of the crate, a third Egyptian embassy official appeared and there was a struggle.

Then two of the Egyptians loaded the crate onto a truck that was parked near the plane. One of the officials got in the truck and roared away toward Rome.

The airport guard called for help and policeman Pietro

Jabboni leaped into a car and gave chase. He caught the truck and stopped it two miles from the airport. The sources said there was another struggle before a passing postal truck driver stepped to give Jabboni aid.

Police opened the crate and found Dahhan, strapped to a seat and gagged. He was semi-conscious, his head held firm by a metal band. His feet were tied. His shoes and jacket had been removed.

The airport sources said one of the U.A.R. embassy officials had said the crate which held Dahhan was carrying musical instruments.

Congo Rebels Held Responsible

U.S. Pleads for Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government appealed directly to Congo insurgents Tuesday night for the safety of Dr. Paul Carlson and other Americans in rebel hands.

The U.S. appeal said the U.S. is ready to co-operate in proposed international arrangements "to protect and evacuate innocent civilians."

The U.S. government, it said, holds the rebel leadership "directly and personally responsible" for the welfare of Carlson, a missionary under rebel death sentence, and for all the 60

U.S. citizens in the insurgents' area.

State department press officer, Marshall Wright, said the U.S. appeal was issued by the U.S. ambassador at Leopoldville, G. McMurtrie Godley.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Congo rebels indicated Tuesday that U.S. missionary Dr. Paul Carlson, who had been sentenced to die at noon Monday as an alleged spy, was still alive and negotiations were under way over his fate.

Efforts to save Carlson—if he is alive—were made by Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya at the request of the United States. Kenyatta urged the rebels to spare Carlson on humanitarian grounds.

A broadcast from the rebel capital at Stanleyville—heard in Kenya—said that a mass demonstration took place during the day outside the home of rebel president Christophe Gbenye, with the crowd shouting for Carlson's immediate execution.

This was the first word suggesting that Carlson was still alive Tuesday since the rebels said they planned to execute him Monday and then fell silent on his fate.

Tuesday's broadcast said that Gbenye told the demonstrators that everyone wanted peace and that this was a continuation of the policy of Patrice Lumumba, leftist former premier of the Congo killed in the early days of independence from Belgium.

MEETS CONSUL
The broadcast said that Gbenye met Monday with the U.S. consul—presumably Michael Hoyt—and discussed the question of prisoners of war.

The Stanleyville account indicated that negotiations between the consul and Gbenye continued. Some of the demonstrators massed outside the president's home carried placards denouncing negotiations with Washington over prisoners, the broadcast said.

U.S. consul Hoyt and a staff of four were last reported safe

behind the rebel lines in Stanleyville.

Kenyatta acted quickly after receiving a message earlier in the day from U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, who asked him to intercede with the rebel regime.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A top Russian scientist disclosed Tuesday that six Soviet cosmonauts suffered "discomforts" ranging from upset stomachs to illusions on flights into space.

Dr. O. G. Gzenko, a balding physiologist, said spacemen Andrian Nikolayev, Pavel Popovich and Vladimir Komarov were the only ones to escape "unpleasant sensations."

At the same time, fellow Russian Dr. V. V. Antipov, a radiologist, said Soviet research had shown "certain space flight factors contribute a definitely harmful effect" to living tissue.

Antipov did not detail the hazardous "factors" but he indicated they included radiation, weightlessness and acceleration, and he disclosed that Soviet experts are studying the use of drugs to combat the ill effects.

Minister Wonders:

Schools Run By Perverts?

CALGARY (CP)—Municipal Affairs Minister A. J. Hooke said Tuesday he sometimes wonders whether the literature and calibre of instruction in today's schools is the product of an intellectual or a sex perv.

For some time "trash" has been invading schools and there has been a trend away from God, Mr. Hooke told 300 delegates to a meeting of the Alberta Association of Municipal Districts and Counties.

Mr. Hooke read a selection from a publication called Edge which said in verse: "Layton lays it on just a little thick. Virgins, prostitutes make him tick. Life is sexy bizz." "That's only mild compared to some of the stuff in here. This comes from the campus of our university (University of Alberta). There are men in this room who can stand up and tell you this is getting into the high schools."

Mr. Hooke said per pupil costs in Alberta has risen from $60 in 1940 to $348 in 1960. "I know purchasing power is down but it's not down to one-sixth of the 1940 dollar."

"They are not giving six times an education and I sometimes wonder if they're giving one as good as we got."

There have been reports that a number of Conservatives want nothing further of what several of them have termed "a protracted flag debate."

And this, together with the number of absentees due to ill-

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Public Utilities Commission may have to ignore the public when it makes a decision on whether B.C. Hydro may increase its bus fares, chairman Henry Angus said Tuesday.

Restrictions in jurisdiction placed on the PUC by the cabinet may mean the PUC cannot give any weight to questions of public interest and public equity in connection with the increases, he said.

Dr. Angus made the statements at a PUC hearing into an application by Hydro to increase its bus fares in Vancouver from 15 cents to 25 cents cash, and in Victoria from 13 cents to 25 cents cash.

He asked lawyers for the power authority and lawyers for the 10 Vancouver and Victoria municipalities who are opposing the increase to advise the PUC on its jurisdiction.

"I would like some advice on the freedom of action of the PUC," he said.

He said such matters as public convenience, the social consequences of a fare increase and the matter of children's fares apparently "are now irrelevant for us and must be addressed to Hydro."

'Deliberate Disregard'

Air Body Plans Crackdown On Coast Lines

OTTAWA (CP)—The air transport board warned Tuesday it plans a crackdown on "alarming deliberate disregard" of its regulations by a high proportion of air carriers along the B.C. coast.

The board said the B.C. coast, including Vancouver Island, is oversupplied with air services. It indicated it will reject many of 27 applications pending for new or increased coastal air service, giving preference to firms which plan regular service between specific points.

On ATB spokesman said an investigation showed many class 4 charter firms were rate-cutting and making special "loss-leader" deals to obtain a larger share of business.

CHARTER SERVICE
Most of this was occurring in areas where too many charter services were operating for the business available.

In a 1,600-word policy statement on B.C. coastal air service, the board said it plans to crack down on such illegal activity by stepping up its inspection and enforcement staff.

OVER-SUPPLY
Generally, it found that: ● There is an over-supply of equipment and services to handle the existing and potential air traffic in certain sections of the B.C. coast.

● Most of the communities on the West Coast are well served by air services.

● Because of illegal rate-cutting, certain carriers have gained a disproportionate share of available traffic and have over-equipped themselves in relation to the service they are licensed to provide.

● Air requirements would best be met by the development of efficient Class 2 regular scheduled-point services where the traffic warrants it.

The board, which held public hearings in B.C. last spring during its study of the situation, rejected the contention of some carriers that the West Coast is a special area where air service requires a different type of development.

33 Days of Skirmishing, Six Weeks in Committee

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Parliament renewed the "flag war" Thursday.

After 33 days of debate in the opening skirmish in the House, six weeks of continuing struggle in the flag committee, the Commons now digs in to fight it to the finish.

Announcement of the battle plan came Tuesday at the closing of the day's business from government house leader Michael O'Brien after, earlier in the evening, he had informed Conservative House leader Gordon Churchill of it.

The final do-or-die fight will be on the government's motion to adopt the recommendation of the flag committee that the single red maple leaf on the red and white field be accepted as the long-sought "distinctive Canadian flag."

Mr. Mellish was optimistic that the battle would be over and won in not more than a couple of weeks, providing Canada with a new flag for Christmas.

He recalled that in the Commons the other day, Conservative leader Diefenbaker had said there now was no disposition to delay matters, and that not more than "30 or so" members of the official opposition would be speaking.

Mr. Diefenbaker still believed a question of such national importance should be decided by plebiscite at the next federal election, but as the "House of Commons man" he calls himself, was prepared to leave it to Parliament.

There have been reports that a number of Conservatives want nothing further of what several of them have termed "a protracted flag debate."

Maple Leafs Collapse Points Easy for Bucks

By JIM TANG

It had to happen, but it wasn't pretty to see when it did.

Victoria Maple Leafs, who had always found enough hockey in their first nine home games to make all of them about as good as spectator fare as hockey can provide, collapsed completely at Memorial Arena last night.

That they lost 2-5, to Portland Buckaroos, again on top of the Western Hockey League tables, was almost incidental. The wonder of it all was that it was close enough with three minutes left to hope for a miracle.

About the only pleasant

thought is that the Maple Leafs will have trouble duplicating last night's performance, and that they have a chance to erase the embarrassment of it all in a four-game road trip which starts in San Francisco Friday.

After last night, that last thought seems only a wild hope. The collapse was general and the Leafs were about as inept together as it is possible for a club to get.

They weren't skating, they weren't thinking and there was no sign of the spirit which in previous home games usually brought them back into contention.

Just about everything that could go wrong went wrong last night. Two of the first three Portland goals looked as if they should have been blocked and the fourth was a glaring defensive lapse. On the occasions when it looked as if the Leafs might be about to start something, there was some bad luck but, more often, it was just bad positioning or bad passing which saw the chances wasted.

ESCAPES SLUMP

Only Rolfe Wilcox, the hard-plugging rookie winger, and Claude Labrosse, the steady veteran who has been a help on defence, escaped the general letdown.

Adding to a bad night, game officials got into the spirit of things with officiating about on a par with the Victoria effort.

Not that this made any difference, except, perhaps, to give the 2,112 fans something on which to vent their spleen.

OFF BALANCE

Sensing early that this was likely to be an easy two points, the Buckaroos kept the off-balance Leafs off-balance with persistent forechecking. And while they really didn't press the issue after getting a safe lead, it took some good saves by Al Millar to keep the game down. But Al locked the barn door after the horse had gone.

Peaky Arnie Schmutz, as effective as anyone on the ice with his never-ending checking and penalty-killing, got Portland started with a shot from the right face-off spot—a spot that has been giving Millar no end of troubles.

Then McVie, trying to tip Pat Stapleton's slap shot on a power play, just slowed the puck down and it slid past the off-balance Millar for 2-0 starting the second period.

Wilcox set the stage for a possible early in the second period with as lucky a goal as he's ever likely to score, deflecting Labrosse's wide shot from about 25 feet to the left of Don Head.

ANDY CELEBRATES

But nothing was to rouse the Leafs this night. They missed the chance to tie when Jim Hay took a penalty, suddenly found themselves two goals behind again as Gerry Goyer appeared to catch Millar napping with a quick shot. Andy Heberton then celebrated his 500th consecutive game by whacking in a passout for 4-1.

Leafs did try to try in the third period, got a hard-to-believe offside call on a promising play and a miss on a cross-check by Portland defenceman Doug Messier as well as a penalty to Bill Shvetz which seemed to be in retaliation for Shvetz driving a puck towards linesman John Smith and connecting.

DESPERATE MOVE

Wilcox made another deflection for his second goal at 17:04 but Bob Ertel intercepted a pass and shot into an open goal at 19:01 as coach Rudy Pilous made that last desperate move of replacing Millar with an attacker.

Yogi Joins Casey

NEW YORK (AP)—Yogi Berra, a New York Yankee for 18 years, joined his old boss Casey Stengel Tuesday as a coach for New York Mets. If the 39-year-old ex-catcher can get into shape during spring training he will be a player-coach and pinch hitter.

Fired as Yankee manager the day after he lost the world series to St. Louis Cardinals, Berra will benefit by a rare salary arrangement. In addition to the reported $40,000-a-year salary from the Mets he will get an additional $25,000 from the Yankees.

ESCAPE CLAUSE

Berra said that when the Yankees signed him as special field consultant after firing him as manager, the contract contained an escape clause that gave him permission to take any other offer and still get the $25,000.

"I'm not bitter," said Berra in answer to a question at a press conference. "I had 18 fine years over there. They took me off the sandlots in St. Louis when the Cardinals and Browns didn't want to sign me."

Did Berra want to manage again?
"I don't know," he said. "I worked for Casey for 12 years and I know I can learn a lot more from him. I might."

Fog Threat Lifts Over Lions' Lair

VANCOUVER (CP)—The weather forecast is for fog to-night over Empire Stadium—but high enough to allow the second game of the Western Football Conference final to go ahead safely.

Officials stuck to a scheduled 8 p.m. start for the game through more ominous weather predictions during the afternoon Tuesday, and were rewarded with good news late in the day.

The weatherman was able to note cloud moving in and said the game would be "reasonably safe" from fog that has hovered over much of Vancouver since Monday night.

STAMPS LATE

Stampeders had a taste of it when their flight out of Calgary was delayed, and finally routed to Abbotsford in the Fraser Valley. They were more than three hours late arriving in the city and went directly to the stadium for a workout.

Coach Bobby Dobbs said weather and field conditions couldn't be any worse than Saturday at home, when Lions won 24-10. Calgary needs a victory tonight to stay alive in the best-of-three series.

TOUGH TURF

Dobbs said he wants to get away from Calgary's frozen turf, which made it a test of strength with Lions and "there's no team in the country that can beat the Lions at that kind of game."

If fog makes play tonight impossible, the game will be delayed 24 hours. More fog will put the game off until Friday, and then to Saturday afternoon.

If Stampeders were to win Saturday, it is likely the third and deciding game would be played Monday night.

If the game tonight goes ahead and Calgary wins, the third game will be played Sunday at 2 p.m.

AT THE 19th
With Harry Young

The Christmas Tree Tournament has the distinction of being the only open golf event played in Canada during the Christmas holiday period, and it is also perhaps the only competition of its type in which every participant is a prize winner.

This year the venue is the Royal Colwood Club on Saturday, Dec. 26, and The Daily Colonist, which has sponsored the tournament during the past 10 years, is happy to announce that this year it will have Woodward Stores as its sponsoring partner.

Woodward's are the people who will ensure that every participant wins a prize, and Santa Claus from their Mayfair department store will be in the clubhouse to distribute the gifts.

J. Courtney Haddock, manager of Woodward's Victoria store, said his firm was delighted to be associated with the Christmas Tree tournament.

"We have always admired this competition because it is wonderful advertising for Victoria and its balmy winter climate," said Mr. Haddock.

"The fact that it has been possible to play this event for 10 years without a weather break is a splendid thing. We are greatly impressed with the efforts which have been put into the competition consistently over the years, and the wide response which it receives from the golfing public."

He added that this was a "goodwill" tournament and his firm wished to maintain the tradition that no one would play in it without receiving reminder of it in the shape of an award.

The Woodward prizes will be in addition to the trophies presented by The Daily Colonist to the winners of the four main competitions—men's gross and handicap; and women's gross and handicap, and to the many other prizes generated from the tournament prize fund.

The Christmas Tree is open to all men and women amateur golfers with official RCGA handicaps, and it is a medal contest over 18 holes.

The entry form for the competition will be published in The Daily Colonist on Sunday, Dec. 6.

The other week in an article in a national golf magazine on winter golf in Victoria, I said that compared with other Canadian clubs of similar stature, the green fees for visitors were extremely modest.

Since then both the Victoria and Royal Colwood clubs have upped their fees—the former to $5 and $6 (weekends) and Colwood $4 and $5. Now Uplands has brought its fees into line with those at Colwood and has also increased its entrance fee for membership.

At the Uplands' general meeting to be held Thursday, a proposal will also be put forward to increase the annual dues for men and women members.

Maybe I should have kept mum about Victoria and its bargain golf!

The Royal Canadian Golf Association has completed its schedule of tournaments for 1965, with Winnipeg getting three of the big events—the Americas Cup matches, the Willingdon Cup and the Canadian Amateur.

The National golf week competition is June 5-13 at all golf courses.

The Senior championship of Canada will be played at Capilano Golf and Country Club, June 16-18.

The Canadian Open is at Mississauga, Toronto, July 14-17.

The St. Charles Country Club of Winnipeg holds the Americas Cup matches Aug. 6-7.

The Willingdon Cup is at Pine Ridge Golf Club in Winnipeg Aug. 9-10, and the Canadian Amateur on the same course, Aug. 8-14.

The Junior interprovincial team matches are at Brantford Golf and Country Club Aug. 30-31, followed by the Canadian Junior Championship on the same course Aug. 30 to Sept. 4.

The RCGA annual general meeting will be held in Montreal Feb. 5-6.

About 200 TV Tickets Still for Sale

There are still a few tickets left for the closed-circuit television showing, at the Capitol Theatre, of the second game of the Western Football Conference final between B.C. Lions and Calgary Stampeders, scheduled for Vancouver's Empire Stadium tonight starting at 8.

The game is not available on home television in Victoria or Vancouver.

Tickets—less than 200 are left—will be on sale today at Eaton's box office between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Season ticket holders who have not yet claimed their seats have until noon today to exercise their option. Any seats unsold after 5:30 will be on sale at the Capitol Theatre after 6.

In the event fog should postpone tonight's game, tickets will be good for whenever the game is played.

Maple Leaf Medico Mum On 'Big M'

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League will be without the services of left winger Frank Mahovlich for at least "a couple of weeks," club doctor Hugh Smythe said Tuesday night.

Dr. Smythe said that although he had made a diagnosis of the condition that has kept Mahovlich in hospital for a week now, that diagnosis would not be released to the public.

"He's coming along very well," said Dr. Smythe. "If everything goes all right, he may be out in a couple of weeks."

He added that he did not wish to discuss the case further.

knocked him to the ice after missing a shot. Plante kicked out a hard shot from 25 feet by Gordie Howe, but Delvecchio blasted the rebound into the cage for his fifth goal.

Gilbert got the game-winning marker, at 12:42 when he, Goyette and Henry broke in on Crozier after both Detroit de-fencemen had been knocked out of the play by body checks. Gilbert took Goyette's pass, faked Crozier out of position and slipped the puck into the net.

Plante, who gave up four goals in the final period when the Wings blasted the Rangers 6-2 Sunday, made 24 saves while Crozier stopped 19 shots.

The winner of the Vancouver Island juvenile football final Friday night will go to Kamloops to play off against the Kamloops High School team and become the B.C. juvenile champions.

The Island championship will be decided when Farmer Construction take on the outspoken Nanaimo Redmen, but not for the Little Grey Cup.

Nanaimo defeated the Vancouver juvenile champion Meralomas two weeks ago.

The Kamloops team is alleged to be the top football team in the interior, and they have challenged the Island league champions to decide which league is tops.

Nominations for the most valuable players of the league were announced today. They are: Larry Biggs—Nanaimo Redmen (league's top scorer); John Porter—J.B.A.A. Mustangs quarterback; Harold Sutton—Farmer Construction offensive and defensive half.

The B.C. Fish and Game Branch has announced that the open season on antlerless deer has been extended one week in most parts of the Cariboo and the Kamloops-Merritt districts because of mild weather.

In game management areas 6, 17, 11, 15, 16 and 19 the season will be extended to Nov. 29 from Nov. 22.

The branch said continuing mild temperatures and lack of snowfall have kept deer at higher altitudes than usual and produced a lower harvest "than is desirable in the interests of good game management."

'Stolen' Car Wasn't

NANAIMO — A 19-year-old Cedar youth was given a one-year suspended sentence in magistrate's court Tuesday after pleading guilty to a charge of causing a public mischief.

Court was told Howard Kenneth Inch reported his car stolen Nov. 15 in order to escape overdue payments. Police said an investigation showed he moved the car from Nanaimo to the side of the highway near Cassidy.

Magistrate Eric Wines recommended that probation terms include a stipulation Inch be allowed to drive only on the job.

Assessment

Nicoll Loses Battle

NANAIMO — R. E. (Doc) Nicoll has lost his fight for a 50 per cent assessment cut—a fight which will result in higher assessments for some of his neighbors.

NO CHANGE

The Nanaimo court of revision, which earlier this year refused twice to hear Mr. Nicoll's assessment appeals, handed down its decision Tuesday after a recent rehearing ordered by the B.C. Supreme Court.

It rejected any assessment change for his properties on Gabriola and Breakwater Islands and said his request for a new taxation formula and a royal commission on the taxation act were "not warranted."

AGREEMENT

The court also ordered that the so-called "Page" property next to Mr. Nicoll's land "be brought up to the level of the other assessments for the 1965 rolls."

The decision agreed only with Mr. Nicoll's arguments for a review of the definition of farm classifications in assessments.

Arrowsmith Heights

Parents' Threat Brings Talks With Trustees

PORT ALBERNI—Parents in the Arrowsmith Heights area east of the city boundary who have threatened to keep their children out of school have been invited to meet the Alberni district school board.

The invitation was issued Monday night during a meeting in which the board also:

● Discussed the possible switch of referendum funds for a four-room school in south Port to a two-room addition to C. T. Hilton School.

● Learned working plans can be drawn up for the vocational school at Alberni District Secondary School.

STRONG FEELINGS

A petition from 13 adults asking for transportation for 20 Arrowsmith Heights children said the petitioners felt so strongly "we may be forced to keep the children from school."

The parents said the children must walk along an unlit gravelled street which is fringed with bushes.

District schools superintendent William Gurney, who had been asked to investigate a previous request from the area, said the most distant home in the area was 1½ miles from school.

WALK LIMIT SET

Board chairman J. A. MacFie said he felt the board was governed by a Public Schools Act clause which sets the walk limit at 2½ miles. Despite this, the trustees decided to meet the parents.

Trustees learned difficulty in finding a suitable site for the four-room school in south Port prompted the suggestion for the Hilton addition.

The provincial education department sent word that a cost estimate for the addition would be needed before permission for a fund transfer could be granted.

Contract Soon

Cowichan Bay Awaits Start On New Wharf

COWICHAN BAY—Tenders have been called and contracts will be awarded in the near future for expansion of CNR docking facilities here, a spokesman for the company announced Tuesday.

The estimated cost of the expansion was not announced.

BIGGER BERTH

The project includes enlarging the existing berth to accommodate two ships instead of the present one, and installation of an assembly area behind the wharf.

The spokesman said a dredge will be brought in to make an island for the assembly area, about 400 feet square, to handle packaged lumber.

READY-TIED

He explained that in the past the lumber was loaded by hand; now it is packaged in uniform lengths and tied up with steel tape.

The company official said a disadvantage of the old arrangement was the fact lumber could not be loaded in selected lengths. Sometimes the required length would be on the bottom of the load.

FORK LIFT

With the construction of the assembly area, the packaged lumber will be removed from trucks and railway flatcars, and reloaded according to length near the docked ship, where it can easily be loaded into the ship's hold by fork lift.

The CNR had hoped to have the project completed by the new year, but plans have not gone ahead as quickly as expected.

TEMPORARY

The company now is building a smaller temporary assembly area to be used until the permanent project can be completed.

Mac-Powell Calls Pollution Meeting

PORT ALBERNI — A meeting to discuss measures to control industrial smog will be held Thursday evening on the invitation of MacMillan, Bisset and Powell River Ltd. officials.

Thomas Ross, local public relations official for the firm, said Tuesday members of the city councils of both Alberni and Port Alberni, as well as representatives of the press, have been invited.

Last week Alberni council authorized a letter to MacPowell's Alberni area general manager, Jack Forrest, expressing concern over air pollution.

Vote Chase Begins

Special to the Colonist
Hats are being tossed into rings at an increasing rate as the annual December elections come closer in Vancouver Island cities, municipalities and villages.
B.C. Forest Products employee

Jack Wilson of Glenora announced he will run for a position on the Cowichan district school board, where the terms of five trustees expire this year.
Chairman Joseph Frumuto, North Cowichan representative Jack Ekford and unorganized area member Wilk Peck are already in the race, but Pat Mason of the unorganized area and Mrs. Isabel Tarlton of Duncan have decided not to run again.

CHAIRMAN DESIGNS

Mr. Wilson will take Mr. Mason's post if there are no other candidates in the unorganized area.

In Port Alberni, school board chairman James MacFie has resigned to run for city council. A native son and a board member for three years, he is a cousin of Alberni Mayor Fred Bishop and a grandson of Alberni's first mayor, the late C. F. Bishop.

PAPERS FILED

In Courtenay, acting mayor Ald. George Hobson has filed papers for the office of mayor to succeed city clerk-administrator William Moore. Ald. Harry Harris also is an announced mayoralty candidate.

Seven Courtenay residents plan to run for city council, but the only ones who have filed papers are Ald. Sandy Strachan, former alderman Myrtle Vickberg and retired wholesaler Kenneth Richards.

Possible candidates are former mayor Geoff Browning, who will seek the one-year term left vacant by Ald. Bruce Gordon's resignation, IWA local president Max Salter and city residents Kathleen Kirk and Nick Willychuck.

SEEKS RE-ELECTION

In addition to Ald. Gordon, Aldermen Harris has submitted his resignation and Ald. Sid Williams says he won't run again.

In Cumberland, village council member Peter Cameron says he will seek re-election. Two others whose terms expire this year, chairman William Henderson and George Apps, have not indicated their decisions.

Appointed school trustee Winifred Buchanan may seek to retain her seat and at least one opponent is expected, which would mean the first Courtenay trustee vote in 12 years.

Building Permits Up in October

NORTH COWICHAN — Building permit values rose in October to $63,300, municipal officials said Tuesday, from $35,451 in the same month last year. Ten-month totals were $2,031,641 this year and $1,812,885 a year ago.

Accidents Mount On Port Streets

By MARGARET TREBETT

PORT ALBERNI—A 12-year-old Port Alberni boy was critically injured in a street accident Tuesday afternoon only a few hours after a Port teen-ager died in hospital following a collision Sunday.

Donald Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samson Robinson, was reported in critical condition in West Coast General Hospital with head injuries after he was hit on Kingsway near Third.

Police said the vehicle was a panel truck driven by George Raymond West, 708 Eighth Avenue North. They added the accident occurred just after dusk in heavy traffic.

FOURTH PEDESTRIAN

It was the fourth pedestrian accident in the city in nine days.

Earlier an 18-year-old youth died in West Coast General about 32 hours after a car-motorcycle collision.

An inquest opened last night, then was adjourned, into the death of Richard Allan Helem, 18, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. V. Helem, 712 Anderson Avenue South.

MOTOR BIKE

He was admitted to hospital Sunday after the accident, involving his small motor bike and a car, at the intersection of Tenth Avenue and Burde Street. Richard, born here Nov. 24, 1946, leaves his parents and one sister, Barbara, at home. Funeral services will be held in St. Alban's Church at 2 p.m. Thursday.

FUNERAL TODAY

Meanwhile, funeral services for Peter Andersen, the victim of a traffic accident last Friday, will be held in Stevens' chapel at 1:30 p.m. today. Born in Olderstad, Norway, Mr. Andersen would have been 74 in December. He had lived in the Alberni Valley for 40 years and had made his home recently at 409 Athol Street.

An inquest, which opened Monday evening, was adjourned until Friday.

'Just Fell Over'

"I got into my truck and then they just fell over," said drink truck driver Robert Barnett, left, said after every bottle in 13 of 38 cases on vehicle smashed in mishap at Tyeve shopping plaza in Campbell River. He and helper Joseph Jennings, both Duncan residents, had to clean up mess. —(Gary Webster).

Second Big Cougar Shot on Salt Spring

By BEA HAMILTON
FULTON — Only two days after Salt Spring Islanders expressed the hope the last cougar had been shot, another was killed in the Beaver Point area Tuesday.

The 150-pound male was shot only half a mile from the post where a slightly smaller male was shot Sunday by Gavin Reynolds and two sons of sheep rancher Bob Akerman.

Its discovery led Mr. Akerman to speculate a female may be on the island and thereby attracting males. He decided to go out today to look for more cougars.

The animal shot Tuesday was found after Father William Mudge of Saanich, whose parish includes part of Salt Spring, and Mr. Akerman's son Ted went hunting.

They shot a buck near Bryant and Stewart Roads, and then found a half-eaten sheep and a cougar bed not far away.

They went to get Mr. Akerman, who returned with his cougar hound. The hound circled twice, then began to bark.

Before anyone could move, the cougar leaped from the bush and climbed 40 feet up a Douglas fir. It was shot by Father Mudge and young Akerman.

Green Warns Students Of 'Separatist Suicide'

NANAIMO — Former external affairs minister Howard Green told high school students and Kiwanians Tuesday that if the Separatist movement is successful, "it will be the worst example of national suicide the world has ever known."

He urged Canadians to "hold up their heads and have faith in their own country. We have to believe in our national destiny. We don't believe in it half enough."

Mr. Green charged that by the attitudes of Separatists and anti-monarchists, "the whole foundation of Canada is being chipped away. We must value these institutions, stand by law and order, take a keener interest in the affairs of the country and the character of the Canadian people."

"Our position in the world could be a great deal better if somebody pulling a trigger," more Canadians would realize what a great country they have."

At the noon Kiwanis meeting Mr. Green refused to apologize for his opposition to the introduction of nuclear warheads to Canada. He maintained it is impossible for Canada to take the lead in disarmament talks "and still bring nuclear weapons onto our own soil."

BIGGEST JOB

He said that Canada's most important job is the reduction of world tensions and the prevention of the spread of nuclear arms.

"Now five nations have nuclear arms," he said. "When 15 or 20 get them there can be no control, far less responsibility in the handling of them and that much more chance of somebody pulling a trigger."

Nanaimo Hospital

Candidate May Halt Demolition

NANAIMO—Aldermanic candidate J. Walter Tickson has threatened to seek a Supreme Court injunction which would prevent demolition or "give-away" of the old city hospital. A letter to city council, whose details were disclosed Tuesday, said:

"The action of the (city hospital) board, if permitted, will cause irreparable damage to the interests of the people of the community. City council can stop the action of the board by refusing to issue a permit to demolish the building."

DEMOLISH HOSPITAL

He referred to the board's recommendation, approved by the hospital society last week, that the old hospital be demolished by Merchants Carriage of Vancouver for $14,135.

Ald. John Cook, council representative on the hospital board, commented, "He is a free man and has every right to go ahead and do this if he wants, but I don't know how far he's going to get with it."

REFUSAL DOURTED

Ald. Douglas Greer said he doubted council would be able to refuse a permit for demolition unless the method of demolition was contrary to bylaw.

City hospital administrator Gordon Frith says the request for demolition has already been forwarded to Health Minister Martin for final approval.

Forest Plans Given

GALIANO ISLAND—Plans of MacMillan, Bisset and Powell River Ltd. for its tree farm licence area on Galiano Island have been given to more than 70 island residents attending a public meeting in Galiano Lodge.

Don Schon, supervisor of two tree farms, said the general program in the salvage area is the cleaning up of old growth.

The salvage area occupies most of the tree farm licence, which covers more than one-third of Galiano and is located in several parts of the island. Most is in the north, where 135 acres have already been cleared and planted with 32,500 trees.

IMPORTED PINE

Mr. Schon said the trees are three species of pine from eastern Canada, the southern U.S. and Italy.

All merchantable timber in the land not cleared to date will be taken down to five inches in diameter and the area will be slashed and burned in the fall of 1965.

Mr. Schon was accompanied by Grant Ainscough, manager of the forestry division at Nanaimo; Frank Maher, supervisor of forestry operations; and Eri Campbell, a public relations official from Vancouver.

Two Swans Shot

Gunman Kills, Maims Trumpeters

By GARY WEBSTER

CAMPBELL RIVER — Two weekend rifle shots at two trumpeter swans, which are protected under the B.C. Game Act, killed one of the birds and wounded the other so badly it cannot fly.

The shooting, on the Gold River Road about eight miles west of Strathcona Park, occurred late Sunday, but the unidentified Elk River Co. employee who discovered it was unable to report it for 24 hours. The workman was returning to the company's Camp 10 in the park area when he saw the swans in a large pond, one dead but the other thrashing about.

Conservation officer George Taylor of Campbell River, notified Monday, went to the scene Tuesday morning with diver Stan McKay of the Tahsis Co. and this reporter.

Mr. McKay swam out to the middle of the pond to recover the dead swan, which had been shot in the neck.

The three men were unable to corner the other bird, which had been shot in the wing but was still frisky enough to avoid capture. Another effort to save it will be made soon.

RIFLE USED

Mr. Taylor, who said a rifle was used, is continuing his investigations.

Five trumpeter swans were shot in this area last Dec. 4. The Campbell River Fish and Game Club offered a $500 reward in the case but no one was ever apprehended.

It was not known Tuesday if a reward would be offered this time.

Can't Help Now Village Decides

LADYSMITH — The village council has decided it can do nothing now about the protest of Saturna Island resident Robert Hindmarch against the fire marshal's condemnation of a building he owns in Ladysmith.

The decision for no decision occurred at Monday's council meeting, village clerk Robert Wood said Tuesday.

SMALL HOUSE

The troubled building, a small house which has been vacant for several years, was damaged some time ago when a car crashed into it. Mr. Hindmarch offered it to the Ladysmith volunteer fire department for fire practice and eventual demolition.

But the department said burning the building would mean a hazard to nearby buildings.

NO MORE MONEY

Mr. Hindmarch says his efforts to keep the building in good shape have been frustrated by vandals and he won't spend any more money on it.

He is appealing the condemnation but Mr. Wood said the village may be forced to take over the building and pay for demolition.

The fire brigade asked council to initiate an application for an $11,000 fire and rescue unit under civil defence, through which Ottawa and B.C. would pay one-sixth of the cost each and the village would pay the rest.

Centre For Health

COURTENAY—Tenders will be opened at 5 p.m. Dec. 4 for the community health centre which is intended to become the centre for public health in the upper island.

Officials also see the project as the centre for voluntary health work in the same area. It is expected to become the meeting-place for the 22 local voluntary health agencies.

DENTAL CONSULTANT

The centre will provide a home office for the Upper Island Union Board of Health and its officials, including a regional dental consultant.

It will have space for voluntary services which contributed toward the cost, including the Canadian Cancer Society, the TB Society and the Kinmen polio organization.

SPEECH THERAPY

It will offer such services as speech therapy, mental health, well baby clinics, TB clinics, pre-natal care, adult clinics, rehabilitation assessments and homemaker services.

More than 1,000 square feet will be for the Comox Valley Association for Mentally Retarded Children.

Contributions to the cost have included Ottawa $20,000, B.C. $20,000, cancer society $4,550, TB seals $3,800 and Kinmen $1,200. The Kinmen club is raising additional funds.

DONE BY SPRING?

The officials hope the centre will be completed by spring.

Chairman is Ald. Harry Harris and members are Ald. Sandy Strachan and Kenneth Willis; Dr. G. A. Gibson, health board director; Mrs. D. Vosburgh, nursing supervisor, and Lloyd White, Kinmen. Architect is James White of Nanaimo.

Mr. Wood said the application will be made and, if successful, the truck may be bought early next spring.

Other decisions:

● Approval in principle was given to the purchase of a playing lot, away from traffic hazards, for pre-school children. The Kinmen club will equip the "lot," whose locale has not been chosen, and three others will probably be established if the first succeeds.

● The recreation commission which asked for renewal of the Transfer Bench lease, was informed it will be automatic.

● The waterworks committee was asked to consider a petition from five Cloke Road residents for an extension of the village watermain. About 3,200 feet of main would be needed to replace the 20-year-old line.

● The public works committee was instructed to make a final decision on a $4,000 paving quotation from a Nanaimo firm.

● The resignation of veteran fireman Albert Redford was accepted with regret.

● Nov. 26 was set as the date for the annual village cleanup.

Pole for Pearkes

Fifteen-foot totem pole planted Tuesday in Government House garden was given to Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes by carver Johnny Jacobson, right, of Ahousaht after vice-regal visit to west Island coast village May 30. It depicts legend of killer whale, which Indians said became timber wolf on land.—(W. A. Boucher)

Courtenay, Comox Building Dogpound

COURTENAY — City council and the Comox village council have decided to build a dog pound to serve both areas. It was announced after Courtenay council met Monday night.

Construction of a cement and brick structure, similar to the SPCA shelter in Nanaimo, will begin this week at the city marina site.

DOGS RESIGNED

The city last year hired a dogcatcher, who acted in the same capacity for Comox and Cumberland, but he resigned after a few months.

Cumberland village officials have announced the hiring of dogcatcher James Murray of Royston and strict enforcement of the dog bylaw.

Three dogs were picked up Monday morning in the school grounds and residents have been warned dogs must be leashed or chained at all times, and must also be licensed.

GARDEN BLOCK

Courtenay council also learned the U.S. and Prince George building firm of Miller and Associates plans a 132-unit, $472,000 garden apartment.

The firm has purchased property between 19th and 21st and between Fitzgerald and Cliffe. It is understood construction will begin immediately.

Aldermen also:

● Decided to produce a brochure to promote interest in the December monthly bylaw for a large-scale sidewalk program. The brochure will be similar to the one used by the school board for its recent, highly-successful referendum.

● Instructed city clerk-administrator William Moore to investigate the possibility of reduced sewer rates.

● Asked the finance committee to decide the Chamber of Commerce request for $2,000 for further development at the civic airport.

Faint Cries Foil Kidnap

ROME (UPI) — Egyptian embassy officials attempted Tuesday to smuggle a bound, gagged and drugged Moroccan out of Italy in an air freight crate marked "diplomatic baggage" but were foiled when an airport guard heard muffled cries.

Police uncovered what appeared to be a bizarre kidnap attempt when the guard heard the faint cries coming from the leather-bound crate as it was about to be loaded onto a United Arab Republic jet liner bound for Cairo.

The crate was addressed to the Egyptian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Police confirmed they were investigating the incident but they declined to release any details. They identified the man in the crate as Joseph Dahhan, 30, from Morocco, and said he arrived here two days ago from Frankfurt, West Germany.

Airport sources said two U.A.R. embassy officials brought the crate to the airport.

The sources said Dahhan told police he had been kidnapped

Monday night near Via Veneto, Rome's gay nightlife strip. He said he was hit on the head, forced into the car and later given injections that put him to sleep.

They said when the suspicious airport guard stopped the loading of the crate, a third Egyptian embassy official appeared and there was a struggle.

Then two of the Egyptians loaded the crate onto a truck that was parked near the plane. One of the officials got in the truck and roared away toward Rome.

The airport guard called for help and policeman Pietro

Jabboni leaped into a car and gave chase. He caught the truck and stopped it two miles from the airport. The sources said there was another struggle before a passing postal truck driver stopped to give Jabboni aid.

Police opened the crate and found Dahhan, strapped to a seat and gagged. He was semi-conscious, his head held firm by a metal band. His feet were tied. His shoes and jacket had been removed.

The airport sources said one of the U.A.R. embassy officials had said the crate which held Dahhan was carrying musical instruments.

Congo Rebels Held Responsible

U.S. Pleads for Prisoners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government appealed directly to Congo insurgents Tuesday night for the safety of Dr. Paul Carlson and other Americans in rebel hands.

The U.S. appeal said the U.S. is ready to co-operate in proposed international arrangements "to protect and evacuate innocent civilians."

The U.S. government, it said, holds the rebel leadership "directly and personally responsible" for the welfare of Carlson, a missionary under rebel death sentence, and for all the 60

U.S. citizens in the insurgents' area.

State department press officer, Marshall Wright, said the U.S. appeal was issued by the U.S. ambassador at Leopoldville, G. McMurtrie Godley.

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — Congo rebels indicated Tuesday that U.S. missionary Dr. Paul Carlson, who had been sentenced to die at noon Monday as an alleged spy, was still alive and negotiations were under way over his fate.

Efforts to save Carlson — if he is alive — were made by Prime Minister Jomo Kenyatta of Kenya at the request of the United States. Kenyatta urged the rebels to spare Carlson on humanitarian grounds.

A broadcast from the rebel capital at Stanleyville — heard in Kenya — said that a mass demonstration took place during the day outside the home of rebel president Christophe Gbenye, with the crowd shouting for Carlson's immediate execution.

This was the first word suggesting that Carlson was still alive Tuesday since the rebels said they planned to execute him Monday and then fell silent on his fate.

Tuesday's broadcast said that Gbenye told the demonstrators that everyone wanted peace and that this was a continuation of the policy of Patrice Lumumba, leftist former premier of the Congo killed in the early days of independence from Belgium.

MEETS CONSUL

The broadcast said that Gbenye met Monday with the U.S. consul — presumably Michael Hoyt — and discussed the question of prisoners of war.

The Stanleyville account indicated that negotiations between the consul and Gbenye continued. Some of the demonstrators massed outside the president's home carried placards denouncing negotiations with Washington over prisoners, the broadcast said.

U.S. consul Hoyt and a staff of four were last reported safe

behind the rebel lines in Stanleyville.

Kenyatta acted quickly after receiving a message earlier in the day from U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, who asked him to intercede with the rebel regime.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — A top Russian scientist disclosed Tuesday that six Soviet cosmonauts suffered "discomforts" ranging from upset stomachs to illusions on flights into space.

Dr. O. G. Gazenko, a balding physiologist, said spacemen Andrian Nikolayev, Pavel Popovich and Vladimir Komarov were the only ones to escape "unpleasant sensations."

At the same time, fellow-Russian Dr. V. V. Antipov, a radiologist, said Soviet research had shown "certain space flight factors contribute a definitely harmful effect" to living tissue.

Antipov did not detail the hazardous "factors" but he indicated they included radiation, weightlessness and acceleration, and he disclosed that Soviet experts are studying the use of drugs to combat the ill effects.

He said such matters as public convenience, the social consequences of a fare increase and the matter of children's fares apparently "are now irrelevant for us and must be addressed to Hydro."

Soviet Scientist Discloses

Few Cosmonauts Escape Space Ills

Angus

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Public Utilities Commission may have to ignore the public when it makes a decision on whether B.C. Hydro may increase its bus fares, chairman Henry Angus said Tuesday.

Restrictions in jurisdiction placed on the PUC by the cabinet may mean the PUC cannot give any weight to questions of public interest and public equity in connection with the increases, he said.

'Deliberate Disregard' Air Body Plans Crackdown On Coast Lines

OTTAWA (CP) — The air transport board warned Tuesday it plans a crackdown on "alarming deliberate disregard" of its regulations by a high proportion of air carriers along the B.C. coast.

10 Killed

U.S. Plane Crashes In Atlantic

ARGENTIA, Nfld. (UPI) — An American navy patrol plane plunged into the Atlantic and exploded in flames near this U.S. naval air station Tuesday, killing all 10 men aboard.

The U.S. Navy said an extensive surface and aerial search of the crash site showed there were no survivors. The four-engine P-3A Orion aircraft went down in Placentia Bay while attempting a landing.

ONLY REMNANTS

All that searchers could find floating at the storm-swept site were some four miles west of here were bits of garment and debris thought to be remnants of the big plane and its crew.

The turbo-prop aircraft fell out of the darkened sky and smashed into the Atlantic with a flashing explosion vivid to witnesses four miles away.

The navy said the plane disappeared from radar screens during the final phase of an instrument landing known as Ground Control Approach. The radar landings are normal procedure here at night and in bad weather.

The patrol plane was returning from a six-hour training mission that had been flown in the Argentinian area. The navy said it was not carrying a load of weapons normally used to execute its anti-submarine warfare assignment.

CAUSE UNKNOWN

The plane and its crew were attached to a small detachment of anti-submarine Orions that belong to the navy's VP-45 squadron which has its headquarters at Jacksonville, Florida.

There are about six Orions based here.

There was no speculation about what had caused the Orion
